POLES TO LAND AT PORT

Erzberger Forced to Consent to Demand at Meeting With Foch

By International News Service.

Paris, April 5.—Germany has backed down in her refusal to permit General Haller's Polish divisions to land at Danzig, it became known here today.

Marshal Foch, in his conference with Mathias Kraberger at Spa, forced the German envoy to consent to the use of the port of Danzig, and also arranged with him to permit troops to reach Poland through other channels.

Marshal Foch announced that it had been decided to use other lines of transport in addition to Danzig in order to facilitate the movement of troops to Polatid.

What threatened for a time to precipitate a serious situation arose when Germany denied the Allies permission to land General Haller's Polish troops at Danzig. This right had been given the Allies under the armistice of November 11.

WILSON TO SPUR "BIG FOUR"

Will Insist on Speedy Action on Peace; May Issue a Public Statement

This is the One Hundred and Forty-fifth day since the signing of the armistice.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, April 5.—Early this coming week will determine whether the peace negotiations are to be a failure or a success. Should President Wilson completely recover over the week end it is probable that he will insist upon a reply to his demands from his fellow members on the "Big Four" without any further delay.

These demands, members of the American mission explained, are designed to clarify the treaty proposals and make possible the draft document without any further loss of time. Unless accepted it is possible

ALLIES RETAIN 13,333,000 IN ARMIES

Forces of Central Powers Now 1,125,000, Declares General March, U. S. Chief of Staff

By International News Service.

Washington, April 5.—The central powers' military forces have been reduced to a total of 1,125,000 men, or 15 per cent. of their strength at the time of the signing of the armistice, while the allies have retained 75 per cent., or 13,333,000 of their military strength.

This was revealed by General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, at his weekly conference with members of the press today. These figures, General March stated, were furnished from Europe and included those for the month of February. In detail they are as follows:

	Time of Armistice	Present Strength
Bulgaria	500,000	120,000
Germany	1,500,000	320,000
Turkey	400,000	50,000
Austria	2,300,000	100,000
Total	4,700,000	1,125,000

Referring to the demobilization figures, General March stated that there have been discharged to date 1,624,121 officers and men, of which 91,674 are officers and 1,532,497 enlisted men.

15,101 SEEK NEW COMMISSIONS.

The total number now ordered demobilized is 1,836,500. In persentages 44 per cent of the men and 48 per cent of the officers have been released. There have been 30,644 officers placed on the reserve list on their own request, General March stated, of which 15,101 have applied for commissions in the regular army.

The sailings from Europe since November 1, 1918, have totalled 627,519, and since April 1, 7,649.

DENIES TYPHOID STORY.

General March called attention to what he said was the misconception placed on a report by the public health service in regard to the prevalence of typhoid fever among the members of the A. E. F., and alleged to be due to lack of care by army surgeons. He read statistics which showed that the admission rate for typhoid in the overseas forces for 1918 was 3.56 per thousand, while during the Spanish War the admission was eighty-five in every thousand.

Referring to reports from Archangel that the American troops were "being driven into the sea" by the Bolsheviki, General March said that the War Department reports showed that the military situation there was "well in hand" and that the rumors emanating from Archangel "were incredible." It was expected the Americans would be out of Siberia by the first of June, he added.

REPEAT WELCOME FOR AMERICA

They're back from France—God bless 'em!

"Boston's Own" arrived home today to America on the transport America.

Everybody knows "Boston's Own," the gallant 101st Infantry, Colonel Edward L. Logan's heroic unit.

Colonel Logan himself, triumphantly reinstated to his command, vindicated over all, returned with his command on the same vessel.

Seventy-two hundred officers and men, in all, returned on the America. Besides the 101st Infantry they included the 103d Infantry of Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole's 52d Brigade.

The 103d Infantry was organized mainly from the former 2d Maine Infantry and the former 1st New Hampshire Infantry, with some Vermonters as well. So northern New England was keenly interested in the arrival of this transport.

The units aboard the America include:

Headquarters 51st Infantry Brigade (including Brigadier-General George H. Shelton.)
101st Infantry (Boston's Own.)
103d Infantry (less Cos. L and M) Maine and New Hampshire troops.
Co. C, 101st Engineers.

Help Us Lodge Our Soldiers' Folks

We appeal to everybody in Boston, and within 10 or 12 miles, to lodge the night before, and perhaps the next night, mothers, fathers or close relatives of soldiers who will come from all over New England to see the 26th Division parade. We plan only for those coming from beyond a 50-mile ride, except in case of age or other special circumstances.

Unless our hospitable people respond to the limit of their home capacity, hundreds of mothers and other relatives cannot see the parade of their boys, as there will be a shortage of the usual accommodations.

Please fill out the following form:

Family Hospitality Committee,
26th Division Reception,
Room 630, Little Building,
Boston, Mass.

I will gladly accommodate for the parade relatives of the 26th Division soldiers.

TROTZKY ORDERS FLEET TO ATTACK ALLIES

London, April 5.—The Daily Mail today states that Leon Trotzky, the Russian Bolshevik War and Marine Minister, has ordered the Russian fleet at Kronstadt to put to sea with orders to clear the Baltic of allied war craft.

There is apparently considerable reluctance on the part of the fleet and its commanders, for the Trotzky order also threatens to have executed all those who disobey.

Names of the New England boys of the 26th returning on the Mt. Vernon will be found on Pages 6 and 7.

Stork Leaves Fifth Son at Home of Mayor Peters

"The outfield is complete," Mayor Peters smilingly informed congratulating friends today, when he announced the arrival of his fifth son. The youngest Peters, a bouncing bundle weighing seven and a half pounds, was born at 3 a. m. at the old Peters homestead on South street, Jamaica Plain, which is 125 years old and now houses the fourth Peters' generation to live under its roof.

To employ a time-honored phrase, "mother and child are doing well." But the baby is as yet unnamed, because, Mayor Peters admitted, he had confidently expected it would be a girl.

Boston's chief executive went lightheartedly about his official duties today and scores of friends helped him celebrate his good fortune.

LOGAN AND "BOSTON'S OWN" HOME AGAIN AS AMERICA ARRIVES

SCENES ON THE MT. VERNON AND ON COMMONWEALTH PIER WHEN GEN. EDWARDS VISITED HIS FORMER COMMAND

General Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the 26th Division, paying an early visit to the Mount Vernon. The general is shown on the deck of the transport surrounded by the soldiers he loves so well.

Up the gang plank of the Mount Vernon the boys are seen leaving the big transport on their way to Camp Devens.

Above, Company D, 101st Engineers, Lieutenant E. W. Harvil with sign in centre, waiting to leave for Camp Devens. There are nineteen different nationalities in this platoon. Below, lining up at the pier ready to go to Ayer.

MT. VERNON'S LOAD OF HEROES SENT TO CAMP DEVENS

official welcoming fleet was the Shipping Board's training ship Sturgeon Bay.

She came upon the America in the fog several miles off Boston light and went alongside. It was thick fog and the troops who crowded the rails cried out to the boys on the Sturgeon Bay, "Where's Boston?" The men seemed disappointed that there were no ladies to greet them, but were told that further up the harbor they would find plenty of welcome from mothers, wives and sweethearts. They proceeded cheering through the fog.

Even the vociferous welcome extended the Mt. Vernon yesterday was outdone by the greeting given the America and its soldiers today.

Neither fog nor damp nor drizzling rain could subdue the loving enthusiasm with which Boston received its "own" 101st Infantry, the boys of the old "Fighting Ninth" and "Dandy Fifth," who compose the bulk of Colonel Logan's command.

A big welcoming fleet, bearing army and navy, State and city officials, the formal reception committee and hundreds of relatives of the returning heroes, went down the harbor through the fog and escorted the America up to its berth at Commonwealth Pier.

Many men in the Yankee Division from outside New England wish to remain and parade here with the division, according to a radiogram received at Northeastern Headquarters today from the America. The wireless was from Brigadier-General George H. Shelton, and says:

"Total men of 26th Division on America not from New England, 3,022. Of these, 788 desire to remain with the division for the parade.

"SHELTON."

MT. VERNON MEN OFF TO CAMP.

Meanwhile the 5,824 officers and men who arrived on the Mt. Vernon had been debarking and entraining for Camp Devens.

Every fresh bulletin noting the progress of the America toward Boston's water gate was eagerly received.

The Boston American had word before noon from Bert Ford, the war correspondent and former member of the American reportorial staff, who was on the transport, Ford wireless to the American that the health of all on board was excellent, and that the soldiers were wildly impatient to get ashore.

Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood commandant of the First Naval District, received word today from the Otter Cliff, Me., Naval Radio Station, that communication had not yet been established with the transport Agamemnon, which sailed from Brest on March 21 with 5,824 officers and men of the Yankee Division. It is believed that the Agamemnon will not arrive before Tuesday.

EDWARDS OFF TO MEET BOYS.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the Yankee Division and the beloved "Old Man" of the entire division, greeted the men on the Mt. Vernon before 6 o'clock today, stayed aboard an hour and a quarter and was cheered to the echo. He went down the harbor later to meet the America and greet his boys 'ere they touched Boston shore, this second contingent of his old command.

There was a regular Logan party in the escort that went down the harbor. Heading it were General and Mrs. Lawrence J. Logan, parents of Colonel Logan of the 101st. With them went Theodore, the colonel's brother. General Logan's life is part of the history of the old "Fighting Ninth." He was formerly colonel of that regiment.

Other relatives and friends of the Logans were in the party, which went on a special boat provided by the reception officials.

The 101st Infantry Auxiliary, composed of mothers and other feminine relatives of Colonel Logan's command, went down the harbor on the Macullonne II.

On another vessel in the "Welcome Home" fleet were the men of the 161st Infantry Associates, formerly the Ninth Regiment Associates, led by their president, James J. Phelan.

Delegations from Maine and New Hampshire went on other vessels to extend greetings from home to the officers and men of the former Maine and New Hampshire units in the 103d Infantry.

AIR SPLIT WITH BLASTS.

The welcome from shore began the moment the huge bulk of the America loomed up through the fog as the transport proceeded up the harbor. Harbor craft blew their whistles. The shrill welcome was taken up by shore whistles till the very air rocked with the blasts.

A train from the Mt. Vernon started entraining at 9 a. m. enroute for Camp Devens. The first train carrying the Headquarters company of the 104th Infantry and the Machine Gun company left at 9:15.

The remainder entrained in the following order: Second Battalion—Companies E, F, G and H; Third Battalion—Companies L, K, I and M; and the Medical Corps; First Battalion—Companies A, B, C and D; and the 101st Engineers.

The transfer of troops necessitated ten trains, comprising nine trains of twelve coaches each and one train of eight coaches and four baggage cars, each coach carrying fifty men.

The boys were given food by Y. M. C. A. officials, Knights of Columbus, Red Cross canteen workers and Salvation Army lassies. Free telegraph blanks were given the men at the expense of the Salvation Army, and boxes of assorted candy kisses, together with a copy of each boy's favorite newspaper, cigarettes and tobacco and gum were distributed. Breakfast was served aboard the ship.

Forty Red Cross canteen workers, in charge of Mrs. James Lawrence, Jr., served hot coffee, doughnuts, cake and sandwiches to the boys during debarkation. These workers arrived at the pier at 6 o'clock.

The Y. M. C. A. workers were in charge of C. H. Ellingwood, assisted by four secretaries. The Salvation Army was represented by Adjutant Thomas Malpas, assisted by eight Salvation Army lassies.

The first official to arrive at the Pier this morning was Colonel A. W. Yates, in charge of the debarkation office, who assisted General Edwards in superintending the discharge of the men from the ship.

While the debarkation from the Mt. Vernon was in progress there was a reunion between the men and Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the Yankee Division and now back at his former post as commander of the Department of the Northeast.

General Edwards, accompanied by Major Hyatt and three other officers of his staff, was at Commonwealth Pier early enough to go aboard the Mt. Vernon at 5:25 a. m.

The officers and men on the Mt. Vernon gave cheer upon cheer for their former commander, the "Old Man," as he is affectionately called by them.

EDWARDS CHEERED.

General Edwards was cheered as "The best man God ever made!"

He remained aboard the Mt. Vernon one and one-quarter hours, talking with as many of the officers and men as he had time.

On his way to the pier General Edwards and his officers stopped at a Summer street eating place of the type popularly described as a "one-arm lunch," on account of the arm chairs having one broad arm, for a hasty bite and hot coffee.

With General Edwards were Lieutenant-Colonel Horsey and the general's aide, Captain W. B. Chandler. The general, upon boarding the Mt. Vernon, went immediately to the officers' mess where he was greeted by Lieutenant-Colonel Chesham. After having a light breakfast with the officers of the division the General went out on deck to greet the men.

Pent-up enthusiasm for their beloved commander broke loose then, and for more than five minutes General Edwards tried to speak in the din. No body of men were ever gladder to see an officer than these men of the Y. D. to see General Edwards. The row they raised was heard all over South Boston and even across in East Boston people turned in the streets to listen.

When General Edwards could be heard he made a short speech to the men.

"Boys," he said, "I have just come down from Maine, where I told the people that you were 200 per cent better than when you went across. I told them that the future of the country rested in your hands and that there need be no fear for the United States, as you would always prove yourself worthy."

It was at this time that Arthur Murley, of the 104th Infantry, whose home is at No. 49 Hinckley street, Somerville, called for cheers for the "best man God ever made."

A drizzling rain was falling as the day broke, but it required more than the rain to chill the spirits of the men. Shortly after the arrival of General Edwards on the ship, they began clustering around the bows of the Mount Vernon, and by 6 o'clock were hailing their friends on the dock outside, who had gathered there long before the day broke.

MOTHER FINDS HER BOY.

An old lady was particularly rewarded for her early rising when the boys on the dock finally made out the name of her boy which she shrieked to them in a 1910 piping voice that barely carried over the short distance. Her boy was quickly rounded up and a frantic waving of arms and handkerchiefs was indulged in between the two.

Shortly before debarkation time spontaneous cheering broke out among the boys on the transport. They cheered at anything and everything that caught their fancy on the dock and gave ample evidence of their excellent spirits despite the few hours of sleep they had had the night before. For while they were piped down to their bunks at the regulation hour last night there was little, if any, sleep for anyone on board with debarkation so predominant in their thoughts.

Boston, Massachusetts, and New England can contemplate with pleasure the arrival at Commonwealth Pier before Wednesday of four-fifths of their soldier sons, brothers and sweethearts. The Agamemnon should arrive Sunday and the Mongolia should not be far behind her. Certain it is that the craft with the Oriental name will have made fast before Wednesday.

'Buddy' Comes Back, Convert to Wilson and Suffrage

A Boston civilian managed to go aboard the Mt. Vernon and find his younger brother of the 101st Engineers, formerly 1st Corps Cadets. Brother, when in the Cadets, was a smart, classy chap, rather high-browy y'know, with an almost distressing purity of English, who never swore. Alas he was an anti-suffragist and a stand-pat Republican who fairly frothed at Wilson's name.

Brother has come back from the war an ardent Wilsonite, a suffragist and an expert in bilingual profanity, English and French mixed.

Brother used a French phrase and remarked: "I picked up quite a bit of French over there."

Civilian retorted gleefully: "Well, Buddy, I don't know about your new French but you're sure learned a lot of English."

2,000 More Men In Merchant Marine to Train Here

Washington, D. C., April 5.—Twenty-five hundred jobs for ex-service men were made available today by the United States Shipping Board, when it ordered its recruiting service to accept at once that number of young Americans between 18 and 35 for training as sailors, firemen and stewards in the merchant marine.

Notices were mailed today to the board's three thousand recruiting agents ordering them, in accepting men under the call, to give preference to ex-sailors and soldiers.

Two thousand of the 2,500 men called today will be given intensive schooling or training on training ships based at Boston

Sh-h-h! One 26th Boy Won $5,000 Playing "African Golf"

"Roll dem bones"

In a secluded spot on one of the upper decks where no officers' prying eyes saw, a number of privates of the 104th Infantry were "spinning the ivories."

"Come seven," quoth a young hero, "A dollar on seven."

He got six instead. One chap seemed to be having a big run of luck. Between the fingers of his free hand he clutched a great sheaf of bills, mostly ones and twos.

"Some game," observed an American reporter.

"I'll say so," said a soldier-spectator. "One of the fellows won $5,000 at it since we went over."

"Who is this Croesus?" he was asked.

"Sh-h-sh," warned the soldier, putting his finger to his lips and walked away.

SAVED FROM LIFE TERM BY WILSON

Washington, April 5.—For cowardice and trying to induce other members of his command to desert in the face of the enemy, Corporal Andrew W. Morris or Company D, 367th Infantry, was sentenced to death by a court martial in France. In forwarding the case to the United States General Pershing recommended that the sentence ne commuted to dishonorable discharge and life imprisonment, but President Wilson reduced it to dishonorable discharge and five years at hard labor, the War Department announced today.

CLINTON TO GREET SOLDIERS ON JULY 4

Clinton, April 5.—This town's big demonstration of welcome home to her soldiers and sailors is to be held on July 4. Present plans are for a carnival to culminate in athletic sports at the Clinton-Lancaster driving park and a display of fireworks in the evening. Of the town's 776 soldiers there have thus far returned about 200, and it is anticipated that considerably more than half will be home by the end of the next three months.

$54.56 FOR EVERY RESIDENT IN U. S.

Washington, April 5.—There was in circulation April 1 $54.56 for every man, woman and child in the United States, according to figures made public by the Treasury Department. This is an increase over one year ago of $4.78 and is based on the estimated population of continental United States at 107,165,000.

TRIUMPHANT PROGRESS TO DEVENS

But Lack of Welcome at Ayer Town Stirs Mother of Soldier to Action

Camp Devens, Ayer, April 5.—The Yankee Division troops who reached Boston on the Mount Vernon, came to Camp Devens today.

All along the line from Boston to Ayer great crowds waved flags, cheered and sang songs of welcome to the returning heroes. The progress was a triumphant one, if slow.

Factory whistles, fire alarm bells, steam sirens and engine whistles tooted, blasted and screeched at each station and town.

Immediately on arrival at Ayer, troop trains were switched over to Davis Crossing.

The distance from the point of debarkation to the sanitary cleansing barracks is quite short, but a tribute was paid by the men in the camp, even at this spot. The entire labor battalion of colored troops drew up in a long line and stood at attention as the first of the returning troops filed on.

WET EYES IN CROWD.

As the first troop train arrived and pulled down to the point of debarkation, another train chugged in on the out-bound track.

Just at this moment, two Indians following a flag draped casket from the express office filed slowing after the trundling truck to the baggage car. Stoical even to the end, they lifted the body to the train.

It was the body of Private Howard Wilson, full blooded Sioux, whose death at the camp had been expected some time.

As the train pulled slowly out there were many wet eyes among the mothers and sisters in the crowd, and one woman, unnerved by the sight, upbraided the townspeople of Ayer for their lack of welcome signs and decorations. Turning from the departing train which carried the body of the Indian away, she cried out:

"Where are the welcome signs and welcome committee of this town. It is disgraceful that we have not something here to greet these boys. They come and go, even a sthis one here, but you do not take any notice of them. Come everybody this in," and she started a collection.

In a short space of time a good sum was realized, and the women started off to purchase a huge American flag.

FLAG RAISING ARRANGED.

They sought for the largest one they could get, and finally got one, 19 by 56.

The woman was Mrs. Arthur Downing, the mother of one of the boys in the 14th Railway Engineers.

They are going to have a flag raising tonight.

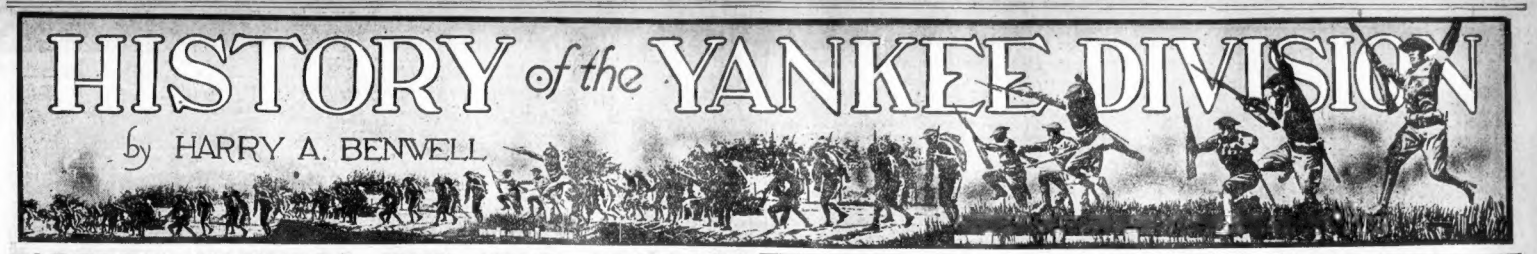
Police arrangements which were in charge of the Department of Justice issued rules that no one would be allowed within the camp area.

This had the effect of keeping the camp and immediate spots surrounding clear of all civilians.

The same rules will apply for Sunday. It will be useless for the public to go to Ayer on Sunday, as they will not be allowed in the camp.

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

by HARRY A. BENWELL



FIFTEEN YANKEES WIN WAR CROSSES AS RESULT OF BRILLIANT RAID

This is the seventh instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30. Major-General Edwards paid a tribute to the division in the first instalment. The story of the remarkably quick organization and debarkation of the division followed. It was the first complete division to land in France from the United States. Then came the tale of sufferings endured in the training area and General Edwards' insistence that the entire division go into action at one time instead of in battalions. Chapter V. told of the first skirmishes with the Germans in the front line trenches and how the Yankees outwitted the enemy in their first engagement in "No Man's Land."

CHAPTER VI.

Yankee Spirit Amazes the French.

While the infantry and artillery were getting their training under fire, the other units of the division were also learning rapidly. They also were under fire, but were unable to fight back. Supply and ammunition trains were continually coming up to the front over roads which were plotted out on German artillery maps and which were swept by shell fire.

The engineers were engaged in laying narrow gauge railroad tracks, machine gun emplacements, barbed-wire systems, dugouts, excavations and trenches, frequently under direct fire from the enemy.

The engineer regiment was split up, even companies being divided, so that it was extremely difficult for Colonel Bunnell to keep in touch with all units. However, he not only succeeded in doing this, but with the assistance of French instructors brought his outfit up to a high state of efficiency.

The men displayed the same fighting spirit that animated the other members of the division, and were always glad to lay down their picks and shovels in favor of the rifle.

Later on, when casualties were heavy, volunteers would be called for to bury the dead. On these occasions the regiment volunteered to a man, although as it frequently happened, they had been working tirelessly for days.

The same thing was true of the signal troops, hospital corps and ambulance men. In fact every member of the division was always ready to volunteer for extra duty, and incidents occurred when men of the S. O. S. walked miles for an opportunity of begging some officer to allow them to get into the fight.

The French had attempted to impress on the Americans the folly of volunteering for patrol duty, declaring "it is not good." There never was a time when volunteers were called for to go out on patrol but that every man in the Yankee Division who knew about it insisted that he be one of those picked.

This spirit amazed the French, who had been through three years of the most terrible warfare, and realized the value of conserving lives.

Surprise for the "Old Man"

Lieutenant Edward Hutchins of the 102nd Field Artillery is the son of Mrs. Susan Hutchins of Beacon street, Back Bay, a cousin of General Edwards. Before the division left for France, Mrs. Hutchins charged the general with the welfare of her boy, and told him to be sure and see that "Ed" didn't run into any unnecessary danger. The general agreed, and then, owing to the multiplicity of his duties, promptly forgot the entire matter.

It was recalled to his mind forcibly on the Chemin des Dames, when he and Captain Hyatt rode over to the aviation camp one day. There they met Lieutenant Hutchins. "What are you doing, Ed?" asked the general, after the usual amenities. "Oh," replied the youth carelessly, "I'm doing observation work in airplanes." "My God," groaned General Edwards, "what will I tell Susie?" For be it known that artillery observation from aircraft is probably one of the most dangerous jobs in the service.

While in this sector the men of the division saw their first German airship brought down. It was reached by the anti-aircraft guns of the French at a height of 2,000 feet. The machine broke in two, the pilot and observer fell out, and the wrecked craft dropped to the ground behind the allied lines. The Germans were almost buried in the ground, so tremendous was the force of their fall. They were the first German dead the Americans had seen, and as a result the New Englanders were somewhat awed. The French, on the other hand, were unaffected, except that they were pleased that two more of the enemy had ended their ability to make trouble. Captain Hyatt, who was one of the first on the spot, secured a map and pieces of the wrecked plane.

Close Call on Chemin des Dames

The Chemin des Dames, or "Road of the Ladies," is a famous highway that runs along the top of a ridge. When the Americans went into this sector the highway had not been used since the beginning of the war, owing to the fact that it was in full sight of the guns of both parties.

Shortly after arrival, General Edwards wished to go to the headquarters of Colonel Hume, which were located at Vaudesson. Captain "Nat" Simpkins, the general's aide, declared confidently that he could find the place with the aid of a map. The two climbed into the general's big limousine, driven by Sergeant Shea, and started.

Apparently Captain Simpkins' knowledge of map reading was somewhat faulty, for the party drove out boldly on the Chemin des Dames, and proceeded jauntily down that highway under the eyes of the German gunners. At first the enemy was so astounded by this spectacle that he did nothing. In a short time, however, he recovered, and began sending over shells which landed in close proximity to the car. General Edwards leaned forward to tell the driver to go away from there, but it was not necessary. Later Captain Hyatt asked Sergeant Shea if the shells were falling close to the car. "I don't really know," replied Shea, "I was too busy feeding her gas."

Vaudesson, Colonel Hume's headquarters, had been a town, but at this time there was no semblance of a building and no cellars. "It was the worst shot up town I ever saw," said Captain Hyatt. "There was not even a little pile of rock left. In a year or so when the grass has grown up, it will be impossible to tell that the town ever existed."

Six U. S. Raiders Win War Crosses

The French were accustomed to going on raids and patrols without rifles. They used knives, grenades and bombs. General Edwards insisted that the Americans carry rifles and pistols at all times.

In the latter part of February the 101st Infantry sent over forty men and the French contributed forty men, all commanded by a French officer. The Yankees used rifles, and the party invaded the German trenches, capturing twenty-three prisoners, including two officers. The American forces had not a single casualty. The French had six. Fifteen New Englanders received the Croix de Guerre for their share in this raid. It was noticed that all the prisoners were displaying black eyes, which apparently had been acquired during the struggle in their trenches.

The use of the rifle on this raid brought a comment from General de Maud 'Huy, which was extremely complimentary. He said that the French soldiers had forgotten how to use the rifle and must learn again to use it like the Americans, who had given a lesson to the French.

During this raid the 101st Machine Gun Battalion helped put across a box barrage by indirect fire. This also brought a letter from General Maud 'Huy, as it was the first time that machine guns had been used in co-operation with the artillery in putting down a box barrage.

Bombers of Paris Brought Down.

In this sector the German had almost entire superiority in the air. German airplanes used machine guns on the roads, and flew low over the trenches, spraying them with bullets. One day General Edwards was riding with Captain Hyatt when a wagon train appeared on the road ahead of them. Suddenly a German plane dropped out of the clouds and flying only about a hundred yards above the road, opened up with a machine gun, killing several horses. Not a shot was fired in return.

During the big raid on Paris, a German bombing plane was brought down in the sector occupied by the 104th Infantry. Captain Hartwell, the supply officer, and several of the men, saw the descending light and followed it. The machine had hardly struck the ground, when the captain pulled his pistol and called on the occupants to surrender. There were four men in the Gotha, all officers and all uninjured. They refused to talk to the American intelligence officers and were turned over to the French.

Captain Hyatt, being curious, the next day strolled over to French headquarters where he learned that the Germans' whole story had been secured. One of the Germans was commander of the squadron which attacked Paris. He told where they came from and furnished the order under which they were acting. They still had two bombs of 300 kilos which they had intended to drop on the American and French lines. They told their captors that the French barrage around Paris was so intense that they were unable to penetrate it. The Americans never had any further trouble in securing information from prisoners.

When the Yankees had entered the sector, they found that a sort of truce was maintained during the day. Frenefl and German soldiers had washed clothes in the canal at the same time, and it had been customary for the men of both sides to move about freely outside the trenches.

The New Englanders could not understand this state of affairs, and they called down the wrath of both sides, by opening fire on the first Germans they saw. During this time one sniper of the 103rd Regiment averaged one German each day.

Tribute From Maud 'Huy.

About the middle of March General Edwards received orders to move the division to the Bar-sur-Aube area, where it was scheduled for a big advance problem. The division had completed its front line training much more quickly than had been expected, and the French were enthusiastic.

As an evidence of the brotherly spirit existing between the two armies, General de Maud 'Huy, commanding the Eleventh French Army Corps, issued the following order:

Headquarters, March 15, 1918

Eleventh Army Corps,
Staff,
No. 9,114 B-1,
S. C. No. 4,817.

General order No. 7.

We regret that our comrades of the Twenty-sixth Division should leave us in order to fulfill their task elsewhere.

We have been able to appreciate their bravery, their sense of duty and discipline, also their frank comradeship; they carry away our unanimous regrets.

General Edwards has been pleased to consider the Eleventh Corps as godfather to the Twenty-sixth Division; the Eleventh Corps feels proud of the awarded honor, being sure that, wherever he may be sent, the godson shall do credit to the godfather.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

COLONEL ERNEST L. ISBELL.

Colonel Ernest L. Isbell, commander of the 102d Infantry Regiment of the 26th Division, now on his way home from France, is one of the best-known soldiers from Connecticut. He lives at No. 399 Whalley avenue, New Haven. The colonel is fifty-two years of age and a lawyer by profession. He graduated from Yale Law School in 1900. His law partner, John R. Booth, has just been made judge of the Common Pleas Court of Connecticut.

Colonel Isbell is a thirty-second degree Mason and for six years was police commissioner of New Haven. He served two terms in the Connecticut Legislature, 1913 to 1915, during the latter year being leader in the House. His military record dates from his enlistment as a private in the 2d Connecticut Regiment, National Guard, May 13, 1889. In 1901 he became major of the famous New Haven "Blues." He served as major in the 2d Connecticut at the Mexican border in 1916. He was with the regiment when it was again mustered into Federal service in 1917 and was in command of it when it went overseas. While in France he was detailed to police duty at Tours Chaumont for a long time. Recently he was in charge of the rest camp at La Bois Boule.

COL. CHEATHAM PRAISES N. E. SOLDIERS

"I don't want to command better troops than the New Englanders. They are brave, quick to take the initiative and susceptible to discipline."

These are the words of Colonel B. F. Cheatham, commanding the 104th Infantry, a regular army man who was transferred to the former Massachusetts National Guard regiment about two months before the signing of the armistice.

Colonel Cheatham, who supplants Colonel Hayes of Springfield, comes from Tennessee. But he is proud of his command of New Englanders, and feels that he is himself a bona fide member of the Yankee Division.

Colonel Cheatham was transferred to the Yankee Division from the Quartermasters' Corps and is particularly beloved of members of the 104th because he "looks after the boys."

He is the man who is largely responsible for permitting the boys of the Yankee Division who do not wish to parade to go at once to their distant homes if they wish.

SHOULD LISTEN TO SOLDIERS.

"Particularly at the end," says Colonel Cheatham, "there were many boys transferred to our regiment from many other units, recruited in the South and West. We cannot expect those boys to have any sentiment regarding the Yankee Division Victory parade.

"If they object to waiting about for two or three weeks for the parade, they should be listened to."

Wearing the Croix de Guerre and the D. S. C., and the subject of more than one regimental or divisional citation, Sergeant John J. Ward of the 104th Infantry was one of the most interesting of the passengers aboard the Mt. Vernon. Sergeant Ward's home is at No. 107 Walden street, Cambridge.

He won his numerous decorations early last Summer, during the battle of Apremont Wood, when he took a machine gun out of the line of fire during a terrific bombardment, lugged it into a dugout, cleaned and repaired it and put it back into action.

Associated with him in the heroic action which won him the coveted French cross were Lieutenant Wallace C. Day, Sergeant George Handdean of Springfield and Private Harold Hobson of Middletown Springs, Ct.

Ward was one of 117 men to receive individual decorations on the day that his regiment, the 104th, had its colors decorated as a unit, the first time that an American regiment was thus collectively honored during the war.

COUGHED GAS MASK OFF.

"What are the sensations of a man being gassed?" was asked of Sergeant Ronald Hersig, No. 39 Somerset street, one of the Headquarters Troop, who succumbed to German poison gas north of Verdun in October, 1918.

"Well," replied the young soldier, "I am a poor judge. I had been under gas for nearly a week. I lived in a gas mask. The cursed stuff got into my nostrils, in spite of all I could do, and irritated me.

"I contracted a severe cough, and could not control it. When we went into action I coughed my gas mask off. I put it on and coughed it off again. And so often was this repeated that the poison fumes finally penetrated and overcame me, and I was a hospital case."

Sergeant Hersig was reassigned after his return from the hospital, and sent up to the lines on the day that the armistice was signed.

"We didn't believe that peace was at hand," declared the young soldier, who is a stenographer in civil life. "We went about with guns poised, and without showing our heads above the ramparts, for several days."

"There ain't any better division than the old Y. D."

The verdict is not that of a New England man, but of George Maile of Ohio, of the famous Rainbow Division, a "camal" invalided to the 26th.

"I was sent to this division because the Rainbow and the Yankees always fraternized," says the young Middle Westerner. "We were alongside when the big advance was ordered, we were together most of the time, and we were the only two divisions which were friendly all the time. I'm strong for the Yankee Division."

RIVERS TO HANK GOWDY.

Maile carries on his person a copy of the regimental paper of the 166th, mostly made up of Ohio men, making reference to "Hank" Gowdy's baseball players, the Buckeyes. The publication refers to Gowdy's baseball instruction as "pure Bawstonese."

Sergeant Warren Prouty of F Company, 104th, Springfield, was another man to bear the Croix de Geurre out of the hell of Apremont Wood. He won the distinction by leading his men out of a tight position after the platoon leader had been shot down.

Private Harold Proctor of Amesbury, one of the heroes of the 104th, received the Distinguished Service Cross from the hands of General Pershing, following the St. Mihiel offensive. Private Proctor's little stunt was to capture a German machine gun nest, in company with another American soldier, make prisoners of thirty-nine Boches, and take booty including five machine guns.

To have two mules blown out from under his wagon, one of his partners killed instantly beside him and the other blown into atoms was the gruesome experience of Private Frank Hunt of No. 57 Summer street, Somerville.

RADIUM AND X-RAY HELP CURE CANCER

New York, April 5.—A combination of surgery, X-ray and radium therapy has been found to help cure cancer, according to an article in this week's Medical Record by Dr. Isaac Levin, professor of cancer research at New York University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College. Although the treatment is not a certain cure, it is the best yet found, Dr. Levin writes. The X-ray, he declares, does not increase the rate of growth of the tumor, as was previously feared. Dr. Levin presents statistics to show that nearly 10 per cent. of cancer cases can be cured.

JAPS EVADING LAND LAW, SAYS PHELAN

White Men Serving as "Dummies," Declares Senator From California

San Francisco, Cal., April 5.—United States Senator James D. Phelan today declared that the Japanese had found a means of evading the anti-alien land laws of California, and are using white men as "dummy" incorporators to gain control of fertile California lands. This charge, he said, was based upon statistics furnished by the corporation commissioner of this State. These statistics, according to the Senator, show:

That the number of Japanese who have made application in the last three months for power to form corporations equals the number who have applied for incorporation papers in the past two years.

Senator Phelan said:

"This shows the necessity of repealing Section 3 of the anti-alien land law, which provides that aliens can form corporations with the provision that the majority of the incorporators be citizens or be eligible to citizenship in the United States.

DEMANDS NEW LAWS.

"This section, he said, at the time of the passage of the law, was considered a preventive measure, but the Japanese have not been slow in taking advantage of its flabbiness."

Senator Phelan's statement in full follows:

"To successfully combat the legal devices employed by the Japanese to evade the law of the State, the Legislature must pass the Inman bill.

"It has become necessary for me to appeal directly to the people of this State for support in securing the passage of this measure.

"In 1913 the anti-alien land law was passed by the California Legislature and Section 3 of that bill provided that aliens could form corporations with the provision that the majority of the incorporators be citizens or be eligible to citizenship in the United States.

"The ineligible Japanese who wished to form corporations secured as their incorporators white men, citizens of the United States, who act as dummies. Statistics furnished me by the State corporation commissioner show conclusively that in most of the corporations the majority of the incorporators are white men and in this way Japanese successfully evade the real meaning and intention of the lawmakers.

IN CONTROL OF WILLOWS.

"In California there are 104 Japanese corporations and 50 more have made applications to the corporation commissioner to incorporate since January 1, 1918. The 104 corporations have a combined capital stock of $1,345,000.

In addition the Japanese have four foreign firms incorporated under California laws with headquarters in Japan, with a capital stock of approximately $15,800,000. The largest of these which withdraws big profits from California is the Mitsui Bussan Kabushiki Kaisha, capitalized for $50,000,000.

"The other three companies are the Tokio Marine & Fire Insurance Company, Ltd., the Okazaki Company and the Uchida Trading Company.

"This shows how the Japanese have been taking advantage of the loopholes of the California anti-alien land law.

"The greatest number of corporations controlled by the Japanese are in Fresno County, where forty-one companies have invested approximately $925,000. All are interested in farming.

"In San Francisco there are ten Japanese corporations. These are for the most part engaged in trading, real estate, general merchandise, importing and exporting and promotion societies. The combined capitalization of these concerns on paper is $750,000.

ORGANIZED IN MANY CITIES.

"The records show the Japanese corporations in other cities: Los Angeles 9, Sacramento 8, Mercedes 5, Oakland 4, Placer 2, Tulare 2, Dinuba, Watsonville, Loomis and Lodi 2.

"There is a scattering of others throughout the State, the principal locations being: Sonoma, Hanford, San Bernardino, San Jose, Newcastle, the Santa Clara Valley, San Diego, Oxnard, Livingston, San Fernando, Yanonville, Guadalupe and San Lorenzo.

"The majority of the corporations have been formed to promote the immediate interests of the Japanese farmers as landholders. The Japanese farmers in one region form a corporation and together they manage to obtain benefits through the control of land which they would find impossible to obtain individually."

BERNSTORFF OUT OF U. S. PLOTS, HE DECLARES

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, April 5.—A denial of complicity in the acts of Captain Boy-Ed and Captain Von Papen in the United States or even the slightest knowledge of them at the time they were committed was made today by Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to Washington.

(Boy-Ed and Von Papen carried on an active campaign in the United States, resulting in strikes and numerous acts of destruction in industrial centres.)

Von Bernstorff went on to say that the British government had in its possession evidence to establish his claims.

The allusion to his Washington sojourn came from Von Bernstorff in the course of an interview on the subject of Germans of the old regime holding office under the present Socialistic rule.

ALWAYS FOR PEACE.

Von Bernstorff reiterated his previous declaration of democratic sympathies, adding that his leanings towards democracy had been the occasion of several clashes between himself and the former German government.

"Throughout the war I was in continuous conflict with the military and naval rulers of my country," said the former ambassador. "How hard I had to fight them, especially in the cases of the Lusitania, the Arabic and the Sussex, is sufficiently clear from my dispatches, which have been published in America and are, therefore, known to the United States government.

"I was one of the strongest opponents of unrestricted submarine warfare. I always worked for peace and, like your President, tried my best to end the world conflict in 1916. I had scored a belated victory when those fatal influences were removed through revolution. That is why I stayed."

NOT ASSOCIATED WITH BOY-ED.

The ex-Ambassador was then reminded of his connection with the activities of Boy-Ed and Von Papen to further Germany's militaristic designs in America. He replied:

"I must emphasize that whatever Captain Boy-Ed and Captain Von Papen may have done, they acted quite independently of the German embassy. These officers had their own offices in New York and received their instructions from the general staff and the Admiralty in Berlin.

"Moreover, may I remind you that when they left the United States I was officially assured by the American State Department that I was not involved in their affairs. Still less did I have to do with the work of other German agents of the Army and Navy Department in the United States. I heard of them only when their enterprises failed.

"After the departure of Captain Boy-Ed and Captain Von Papen from Washington I continued to work in the United States for a whole year for a peace of reconciliation, until the deplorable resumption of unrestrained submarine warfare, decided upon against my most emphatic advice, put an end to all my efforts.

EAGER TO HELP COUNTRY.

"On my return to Germany I told every person who would listen that every immediate democratization of our entire governmental system could bring the war to a speedy end. My advice was not heeded.

"Only revolution, which only could really be begun under the chancellorship of Max of Baden, was effectual in bringing about the downfall of those harmful militaristic antidemocratic forces. It would have been incongruous for me to resign.

"I feel in honor bound to stay and give a helping hand in this blackest period of my country's history."

FINE SALT FISH OFFERED BY EXPRESS

Salt fish—which is selling in most retail stores as high as thirty-eight cents a pound—at fifteen cents a pound, and finnan haddie, which bring from fifteen to twenty cents in local stores, at ten cents a pound are the latest offerings of Alden A. Mills, the fish expert of the Boston American Fish Stores.

Both the salt fish and the finnan haddie will be sent by express, express charges to be paid by the purchaser in thirty-pound lots, beginning next Monday.

This salt fish is salt codfish of the finest kind. But it is not boneless. Boneless cod, which represents a high charge for labor in removing the bones, will sell in this way at twenty cents a pound.

The salt codfish offered at fifteen cents a pound (that figure representing one-half of the customary price) is big steak cod, especially dried and salted under the direction of Mr. Mills, who owns a fleet of over twenty fishing vessels. It is cured by the method used in Newfoundland, where the finest salt codfish in the world is produced.

The finnan haddie offered at ten cents a pound is especially smoked for the Boston American Fish Stores.

Thousands of orders for twenty-pound boxes of codfish, codfish and haddock continue to rain into the office of Mr. Mills, at No. 101 Tremont street. All such orders for these fish—and at present these are the only varieties being offered in this way—should be addressed to Alden A. Mills, No. 101 Tremont street, Boston.

that President Wilson will not remain silent any longer, but will issue a public statement giving the attitude of the United States and an outline of his further plans.

King Albert, who returned to Brussels today, said before his departure that he was satisfied with the result of his appeals to the "Big Four" yesterday in behalf of Belgium's claims.

The claims are acceptable, the King said, but there had been a misapprehension on the sum of money that Germany must pay Belgium. There was another conference by the "Big Four" today, with Colonel House sitting in for President Wilson.

President Reported Greatly Improved; Only a Cold, Says Dr. Grayson

By International News Service.

Paris, April 5.—President Wilson's temperature was much reduced this morning. He slept a great deal of Friday, and has been taking substantial nourishment. His condition seems to be improving generally.

When Admiral Grayson, the President's personal physician, was told that a member of the American peace commission had described President Wilson's illness as influenza, he retorted:

"When did he become a physician?"

Admiral Grayson again repeated that the President was suffering only from a severe cold and that he had been instructed to remain in bed until he had completely recovered.

The President is viewing his enforced absence from the "Big Four" deliberations as philosophically as possible. He remains ready, however, to lend upon any knotty problems which his representative, Colonel E. M. House, cannot decide. Mrs. Wilson continues to act as the President's personal nurse.

It is believed that the President will be confined to his bed for probably two or three days.

In the early part of July the Atlantic fleet is scheduled to base off Newport.

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER

APRIL 6

CITY OF BOSTON

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 41 of Part I of Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1909, as amended by Sec. 5, Chap. 498, Acts of 1914, all persons, firms, and corporations, domestic or foreign, subject to taxation in the city of Boston, are hereby notified and required to bring in to the assessors of said city ON OR BEFORE THE 15TH DAY OF MAY NEXT, true lists. In case of refusal or neglect to bring in such lists of all their polls and personal estate not exempt from taxation, of which they were possessed on the first day of April in the current year, and in case of non-residents and foreign corporations a true list of all their personal estate in said city not exempt from taxation, which lists must be verified by oath as required by Section 43 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 294 of the General Acts of 1916 and Chap. 93, Sec. 6, Special Acts of 1918.

Under the provisions of Section 42 of said Part I, as amended by Chapter 515, Acts of 1909, the above-mentioned lists must be in form prescribed by the Tax Commissioner of the Commonwealth. These blank forms may be had at the Assessors' office, or will be mailed to any address upon application.

Section 42 of Part I of Chapter 490, Acts of 1909, A mortgagee or mortgagee of certain real estate may bring into the assessors of the city or town in which it lies, within the time prescribed by the notice under section forty-three, a statement under oath of the amount secured thereon or on such separate parcel thereof, with the name and residence of the holder of the interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagee. If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more parcels of an estate as security for one sum, such statement shall include an estimate of the portion of the mortgage in each estate or part of an estate. The assessors shall, from such statement, or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interests of the mortgagor or mortgagee, respectively, in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. If, in any year, such statement is not brought in, the tax for that year on such real estate shall not be invalid merely for the reason that the interest of the mortgagee therein has not been assessed to him.

In accordance with Section 41 aforesaid, as amended by Chapter 498, Acts of 1914, all persons and corporations are hereby required to bring in to the assessors, on or before the 15th day of May next, true lists of all real and personal estate held by them, respectively, for literary, temperance, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of April, in the current year, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of April; such lists and statements to be in accordance with blanks furnished by the Tax Commissioner.

FILM DISTINCTLY CREATION OF WOMEN

Mere Man, However, Accepted As Financier of "Midnight Romance"

The star—a woman.
The author—a woman.
The director—a woman.
The financier—a mere man.

And there you have the combination with odds of three to one in favor of the fair sex, that is responsible for the screen drama of mystery and romance that is to be presented at the Orpheum Theatre the first half of next week.

The title—"Midnight Romance."

The star—Anita Stewart, who plays the role of Marie, a maid by day and a mysterious, bewildering Juliet by night.

The author—Marion Orth, the feminine Conan Doyle among scenarioists.

The director—Lois Weber, the woman whose genius has been responsible for several big screen successes, and who knows human nature from a feminine viewpoint.

The financier—Louis B. Mayer, Boston film magnate, who is suggested to the suffrage party as a life member in tribute to his recognition of and confidence in the ability of women in the realm of motion picture art.

Pauline's Habits.

Pauline Frederick comes in her newest photoplay, "One Week of Life," to the Beacon Theatre Monday, and all her admirers who see her as two heroines in the same drama, each totally unlike the other, will wonder which is the real Pauline Frederick—how many of her preferences and prejudices she is enabled to express when playing a part.

Nothing affords a better insight into a personality than his or her likes and dislikes. Let Miss Frederick's friends gratify their curiosity when told, on the strictest authority, that her favorite color is delft blue, and the jewel she most likes is a sapphire, in combination with diamonds. She likes to read detective stories and narratives of adventure, and she reads a great deal. Candy she enjoys, and her closest friends see to it that she never wants for chocolates. Highly seasoned food appeals to her, and recently she ate her first hot tamale, in California where she lives not far from the studios. She enjoys singing simple ballads, including "Mavourneen," which she can't forget because her first professional appearance required her to do that twice a day.

Her bungalow is always fragrant with white carnations and red roses. She appreciates either flower, but loves them together. She owns an intelligent Pomeranian, a black one, whom she calls "Stocker." And she adores him. She owns a folding typewriter which she keys proficiently, writing her personal letters on it and even taking dictation sometimes from her husband, Willard Mack. She revels in magnificent furs, but in spite of her ermines and sables really thinks she prefers crossed fox.

Busted a Real Jail.

The city of Four Millions bids fair to lose its title to being the most blase city in America, if things keep up as they are in Los Angeles. Moving pictures have reformed and rejuvenated the town and it now becomes a rare and unexpected thing to have anyone stop and look at an out of the ordinary occurrence. The passerby merely says "moving pictures" and lets it go at that.

So it did not create much of a sensation recently when Dorothy Gish's director arranged with the Los Angeles police department to give the vivacious little star a ride in the real patrol wagon that carried everyone from peace disturbers to international crooks to the central station.

The scene to be taken was for Miss Dorothy's picture, "Peppy Polly," which will be shown at the Modern Theatre all next week. The star was to be arrested and sent to jail, and of course it was to be made as realistic as possible. An officer on Main street was informed that he should arrest Miss Gish and send in a regular call. She would be picked up by the "hurry-up" wagon and taken to the station.

It so happened that the wagon was out at the time the call arrived, and the driver, calling in, was told to go to the reported station before he returned. When the patrol arrived, Dorothy found that she had company, consisting of a drunken tramp, a woman arrested for fighting and a shoplifter. She says that the ride to the station was nothing like the chummy affair it should have been.

"PANTS AND PETTICOATS"

By permission of Selwyn & Company, prominent New York theatrical producers and owners of the Park Square Theatre, the Somerville Players will produce for the first time on any stage at their Davis square, Somerville, playhouse, a new comedy entitled "Pants and Petticoats." The play is written by Edward Harold Crosby, dramatic editor of the Boston Post. Its premiere will take place on Monday afternoon, April 21, with the full strength of this excellent organization. The play will be staged under the personal supervision of the author and Kendal Weston, director of the company. "Pants and Petticoats" is described as a "straight" comedy and is possessed of crisp and snappy dialogue, in rich humor and tender in pathos. The theme is novel and has a tremendously human appeal. Mr. Clyde McArdle, manager of the theatre, is making an entirely new production. Included in the cast will be Rowden Hall, Ruth Fielding, Rose Gordon, Ted Brackett, John Duggan, Grace Fox and others.

MARCUS BROWN HEADS KENNEDY ASSOCIATES

At the annual business meeting of "The Kennedy Associates," composed of employes of Kennedy's, the following members were elected by popular ballot to fill the executive positions of the organization for the ensuing year:

President, Marcus Brown; vice-president, George Kellenberg; financial secretary, John J. Sautry; recording secretary, William Duncan; treasurer, Francis P. Bradley, board of trustees, Joseph P. Donovan, Timothy E. Hoban, Joseph H. Noonan, William J. Kennedy and Seth Howes.

STEWARD FINED $1,000 FOR MEAL CHECK FRAUD

Andrew A. Dunlap of New York, a steward, was arrested last September with several stewards, porters and chefs on the dining cars of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, on the charge of having defrauded the government by means of bogus meal tickets, paid a fine of $1,000, imposed on him by Judge James M. Morton, Jr., in the United States District Court. Dunlap pleaded guilty to the charge last November.

BEVERLY ACTIVE WITH BIG LOAN DRIVE PLANS

Beverly, April 5.—Beverly intends putting the same enthusiasm into the Victory Loan drive that carried her over the top in the other loan drives, S. John Connolly of Beverly Farms was elected a member of the committee at a meeting held at the Beverly National Bank.

Mayor James McPherson has had an arch placed over the entrance to Odell Park, Depot square, to greet Beverly's veterans when they return from overseas duty.

MALDEN BOY FINED $75 FOR THEFTS IN ARMORY

Ralph E. Ogilvie of Ripley street, Malden, was committed to Malden Court for failure to pay fines aggregating $75 on three counts of larceny from the Malden Armory. Ogilvie, with other boys, it was charged, hid in the armory and after the building had been closed for the night, rifled lockers and stole a gold watch and other property. The boys forced their way out and young Ogilvie was caught trying to sell the stolen watch, according to the police.

REPEAT DIN AS THE AMERICA ARRIVES

Welcome to Mt. Vernon Outdone as Second Transport Brings Back More Y. D.'s

The exuberant welcome which was accorded the Mt. Vernon and its soldiers was repeated for the America and its heroes. But there was an added emphasis—a note of particular Joy for Boston—in the arrival of the America because it brought back "Boston's own," the men of the old "Fighting Ninth" and "Dandy Fifth."

Taking part in the welcome to the America were delegations of State and city officials from Maine and New Hampshire, here to extend first greetings to the officers and men of the old Second Maine and First New Hampshire Infantry Regiments, now included in the 103d Infantry of the Yankee Division.

WELCOME REPEATED.

Again the eager waiting for the first news of the incoming transport. Again the speeding down the harbor of the welcoming flotilla of destroyers, coastwise chasers and other craft of the welcoming flotilla. Again the gay greetings from flags of harbor shipping and the raucous salute from whistles and bells on harbor craft and along the waterfront.

The America, which is the seized German passenger liner Amerika with one letter in its name changed, left Brest on March 21. The 7,209 officers and men aboard included the following units of the Yankee Division:

Headquarters 51st Infantry Brigade, with Brigadier-General George H. Shelton.

101st Infantry.

102d Infantry (less Companies I, L and M).

Company C, 101st Engineers.

Headquarters 51st Infantry Brigade was organized from the 101st and 102d Infantry Regiments.

BERT FORD HOME AGAIN.

A notable passenger on the America was Bert Ford, the famous war correspondent and former member of the Boston American staff. Mr. Ford went to France as war correspondent for the International News Service. His vivid and accurate reports by cable of the war events from day to day have been followed with especial interest by Boston and New England readers. In addition to his cable bulletins, Ford has enriched Boston's war reading with numerous special stories about Boston and New England units.

Brigadier-General George H. Shelton, commanding the 51st Infantry Brigade, is the West Pointer who was chief of staff for Major-General Clarence R. Edwards when the latter first came to Boston as commanding officer of the Department of the Northeast. He arrived on the America as a member of the staff of Major-General Edwards' successor, Major-General Joseph Leonard.

The 101st Infantry, better known around Boston as "Boston's Own," is colonel Logan's new command. It is part of the 51st Infantry Brigade, general Shelton's brigade.

The 101st was organized from the old Ninth Massachusetts Infantry, the "Fighting Ninth," from the Fifth Massachusetts Infantry the "Dandy Fifth," which contributed 1,400 men, and from the Sixth Massachusetts Infantry, which contributed 175 men.

The 101st has the honor of being the very first unit of the Yankee Division to sail away to war.

Boston and New England long remembered that Sunday of September 2, 1917, which was the last "Visitors' Day" at Framingham's camp before the 101st Infantry started. While utmost secrecy was being maintained as to the exact hour for the forthcoming departure, it was rumored that the time was at hand.

BLESSED BY CARDINAL.

Governor McCall made a final address to the men. The regiment received the apostolic blessings from Cardinal O'Connell. On the following Friday morning, September 8, Colonel Logan turned his men out in full marching equipment. They entrained that night for Hoboken and soon were sailing across the submarine infested ocean. The glorious career in France is now written into the imperishable records of the American expeditionary force in general and of the Yankee Division in particular.

A sensational war chapter developed in regard to Colonel Logan himself. Boston and Massachusetts were stunned to learn that just before the armistice was signed, Colonel Logan was charged with "inertia" and was relieved of his command. How he met these charges, how he broke them down and defeated the efforts of those who sought to belittle him and his efficiency, and how he was triumphantly vindicated and was restored to the splendid command, is a part of army history, but one which still leaves much to be explained.

The failure of Colonel Logan over his detractors is regarded as a particular and personal victory for Boston and New England.

HOME BACK WITH HONORS.

The 103d Infantry, which came on the America, less L and M Companies, is Colonel Frank M. Hume's command. He was in command of the 2d Maine Infantry when that regiment was made part of the new 103d Infantry. The rest of the 103d Infantry was drawn from 1,636 officers and men of the First New Hampshire Infantry, with some reserve officers.

Here's the baby of the Mt. Vernon, with her big sister, one of the French war brides. The little girl is Guellemot Marie Chandler. Her mother is dead, and she is going to Morgan, Ky.

Greetings Exchanged by Edwards and Logan

Midnight wireless from Colonel Edward L. Logan, 101st Infantry, to Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, and the latter's reply:

U. S. S. America.

I send you affectionate greeting of every officer and man of the 101st Infantry. We are all happy to be under your command again.

Many thanks for your fine message. You cannot be happier than I am to have your splendid men back again. EDWARDS.

HALE TO LEAD HIS MEN IN PARADE

Commander of Y. D. in Conference With Northeastern Officials on Pageant

Major-General Harry C. Hale, commander of the 26th Division, accompanied by his chief of staff, Colonel Richard K. Hale, commanding, attached to Battery A, and his aide, Captain Laurence Cummings, called at the Northeastern Department today, where a conference was held with Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff of the Northeastern Department.

When General Hale was asked by newspapermen as to the date of the parade of the 26th Division, he replied:

"I cannot tell exactly when the parade will take place. I am now on my way to see General Edwards at his residence on Commonwealth avenue. There we will talk over preliminary arrangements and will try to fix a date if possible. The date will not be made known today in all probability."

When asked whether he would lead the parade of the 26th Division, General Hale replied:

"I will lead the parade, but will cooperate in every way with General Edwards. The details of the parade are entirely in charge of the Northeastern Department. After conferring with General Edwards I will motor direct to Camp Devens to see what arrangements have been made for the members of the 26th Division."

LEXINGTON CHURCH TO HOLD RALLY SUNDAY

Lexington, April 5.—Rally Sunday, marking the beginning of the fourth year of the pastorate of the Rev. George Loring Thurlow, will be observed in the First Baptist church here tomorrow morning by the members of the parish. To each member of the church will be given a souvenir, containing a picture of the church, the pastor, certificate of membership, church covenant and pastoral letter.

HARVARD FLIERS FOR BIG CONTEST

All Harvard fliers who wish to take part in the Atlantic City tournament have until Tuesday to state their qualification at the aero club of the university. A number of men will take part, and it is hoped that Douglas Campbell or James Knowles, Harvard aces, will be selected.

General Edwards to Speak at Play Given by Professional Women

General Clarence R. Edward of the Northeastern Department, who was commander of the 26th Division when it went "overseas," has accepted an invitation to attend and speak at the Professional Woman's Club play, "A School of Scandal," on the afternoons of April 23 and 24 at the Plymouth Theatre, tendered him by President Marie Dewing Faelton.

The Professional Woman's Club, one of the strongest woman's organizations in the city, conceived the idea that in order to make a contribution to the members of the 26th Division that at least they could do would be to give 50 per cent. of the proceeds of the two days' performances to the Yankee Division. It is the contention of the members of the club that the famous 26th Division deserve more than praise.

General Edwards will probably address the audience between the acts, telling them of the valor of the famous 26th Division during his reign as its commander until succeeded by General Hale.

Captain Conrad Wesselhoeft, a medical officer who went to France in 1917 with the 101st Ammunition Train and who has only recently returned home, has also accepted an invitation to attend and will relate some of his thrilling experiences with that division and the 102d Infantry.

QUITS HOTEL FOR N. E. BALL LEAGUE

Clinton, April 5.—John F. Kiernan, for the past three years proprietor of the Oxford Hotel here, will not apply for a renewal of his liquor license. He has been awarded the Pittsburg franchise in the New England ball league and will leave here about May 1.

Biggest Man of the Y.D. Glad He Was in War

The biggest man in the Twenty-sixth Division—that is in point of combined weight and stature—is Corporal Frank C. Welch of M Company, 104th Infantry, whose home is at No. 151 River street, North Adams. Corporal Welch is 6 feet 6 inches and weighs 230 pounds.

Welch puts a big premium on the experiences he has had abroad—some of them far from pleasant. He said:

VALUES EXPERIENCE.

"To tell you the truth, we had rough sailing for a good part of our time over there, but I wouldn't sell my experience for a million dollars."

Corporal Welch's athletic bulk stood out in contrast to the relatively small, but actually large, mess pot which he held in his hand.

In the first battle of Apremont—that battle which brought to the 104th Infantry the decoration of its flag—Welch was Corporal. He sent up the flare to the New England artillery to put over a barrage. And it was that barrage that saved the gallant 101st on our right.

SCARED PRISONER.

"We took a German prisoner and scared him into telling us what the enemy intended to do," said Welch. "We were the first Americans he had ever seen. This was one of the things that brought the citation to the 104th Infantry."

About General Edwards, Welch said:

"There was not a man in the division that did not like General Edwards. He was just like a father to every man in the outfit. We all felt keenly when he was taken away from us—we of the men as well as the officers. 'Old Man Edwards' knew just what to do, how to do it and just at what time to do it."

NEW R. I. RULE TO GUARD 'LIFERS' IN PRISON

All Visitors Must Be Searched; Order Follows Attempt to Smuggle in Saws

Providence, April 5.—There will be no more sawing of bars at the State Prison, according to Warden A. W. Linscott, who issued an order today that all visitors to the institution, requesting to see life prisoners, be searched.

This order follows the discovery that a fellow named James McLaughlin, alias James Ryan, aged 24 years, of Boston and Providence, attempted to pass a dozen hack saws to Bill Trent, a life prisoner, according to prison officials.

It has been the custom to permit visitors to go to a wicket to talk with prisoners. On this occasion Warden Linscott was standing in the hallway close by. He became suspicious of McLaughlin, and as he passed a box purported to contain cigarettes and Bull Durham, the warden immediately took possession of the package, and according to his statement, found the saws therein.

McLaughlin was arrested and is held for another police station. Following his appearance before Judge Harry Dubois, who has held McLaughlin in $5,000 bail, he was held for another hearing on Monday, April 9.

About two months ago Henry Desloe, who has had two trials in connection with the Woonsocket headless mystery, and Wilfred Lavoie, a trusty, made their way out of prison. They have not been apprehended.

It is said whether with several instances where drugs and other material have been passed through the bars to prisoners, has caused Warden Linscott to issue the iron-clad order for searching visitors calling at the prison in the future.

McLaughlin first admitted passing the saws to Trent, according to Chief James Croft of the Cranston police, who is in possession of the saws. Trent is serving a life sentence for murder. He has already served nine years.

JUDGE PUTNAM IS HONORED AT EXERCISES

Memorial services for Judge William LeBarron Putnam, formerly of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, were held today at the Federal Building. Judge Putnam died about a year ago in March.

There was a large attendance of the judiciary, lawyers and laymen. Judge George H. Bingham of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals presided.

Resolutions were presented by John F. A. Merrill, United States District Attorney for Portland, Me., and there were addresses by Moorfield Storey and Judge Francis J. Swayze of Newark, N. J., Angell of Providence and ex-Chief Justice Emery of Maine.

Tributes to Judge Putnam were paid by Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court, Washington, D. C., Judge Aldis B. Bingham, and by Judge Edgar Aldrich, who was for many years associated with the deceased.

MANY ASPIRE TO BE MEMORIAL POET

Poets have a two to one lead over artists in the number of offerings submitted to the Official Commemorative Book to be issued in the welcome of the 26th Division. But even at that the Portland poets, Henry Perry Judge Robert Grant and Miss Mary O'Brien, have not been able to agree on a memorial poem. A poem of sufficient strength and thus choose the official poem to illustrate Boston's welcome to the 26th. The judges on the designs for the front piece of the book are Chas. Hopkinson, Harold M. Brett and Henry Lewis Johnson. They will meet on April 9 to make their decision and Judges on the poem will meet April 12.

EXONERATION FOR JOSEPH MYERSON

Joseph Myerson, who was arrested for alleged sale of dental goods stolen from the John Hood Company, dental supply house, was acquitted in the municipal court. At the same time Dr. Altschuler and James Burke pleaded guilty and were given suspended sentences. Myerson pleaded not guilty and said that while he had sold goods from Dr. Altculer he had no means of knowing where the latter secured them and could not rightly be accused of handling stolen property.

Late Cable Bulletins!

Cairo, April 5.—News of a three-day battle between British troops and Bedouins at Assuit, in Upper Egypt, in which the British were victorious, was received here today. The small garrison, aided by airplanes and machine guns, was attacked repeatedly by Bedouins, all of whom were driven off.

Copenhagen, April 5.—Martial law has been declared at Agram as the result of violent disturbances throughout Croatia, said a dispatch from Vienna today.

Amsterdam, April 5.—Sixty Spartacans were arrested at Stuttgart today following a series of disorders.

CHRONICLE SAYS IRISH QUARREL IS RELIGIOUS

London, April 5, via British Wireless Service.—In a leading article on the Irish debate in the House of Commons the Daily Chronicle says:

"It is the deep, underlying fact that Great Britain has granted the principle of Irish self-government.

"Not only does the home rule bill stand on the statute book, but all Irish parties are agreed that home rule should be put in force as soon as Irishmen can agree with one another in some form which does not involve domination of either of the two main bodies of Irishmen over the other.

"However much England may remain the target of Irish eloquence, there is no longer room for a real issue between England and Ireland. The quarrel is one solely between Protestants and Catholics in Ireland itself. England's only wish and interest is that they should make it up and agree on some harmonious self-governing unit, or two."

PETERS TO SPEAK AT LITHUANIAN MEETING

Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters are among the speakers announced by the Lithuanian Information Bureau for a mass meeting to be held in Symphony hall, next to the municipal building in South Boston, Anthony Ives, chairman of the committee, announces stated that this is the first of a series of meetings at which leaders supporting the claim of the Lithuanians to independence will be presented.

Other speakers listed include Rev. C. Urbonavycius, pastor of the Lithuanian Parish of St. Peter's; George A. Shields, Alexander Whiteside and Lieutenant F. L. Bagocius.

COURT DISMISSES SIX CLAIMS FOR REWARD

Clinton, April 5.—Judge Mayburry in the District Court allowed a motion by Attorney John H. O'Brien dismissing six cases brought by claimants for the $500 reward offered by the selectmen for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Stella Soldi a year ago. The court ruled that the selectmen were the proper persons to decide on who was entitled to the reward, and that the court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

RETURN TROOPS TO OLD JOBS, SAYS GARY

Steel Corporation Head Pleads That Immediate Employment Be Found for Them

By International News Service.

New York, April 5.—"Find immediate employment for returning soldiers and as nearly as possible, return them to their former positions," was the urgent request made here today by Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation and one of the largest employers of labor in the world.

Judge Gary made a special plea for the employment of the men of the 27th Division, recently mustered out at Camp Upton. Hundreds of these men, he explained, are now in New York city and immediate vicinity out of employment and funds and in dire need.

"Many of these men are from New York and will naturally seek employment here," the judge explained. "The result will be that a number of our men will find themselves with out positions unless we, and employers of labor should ever there selves to remedy this situation.

"Large numbers of the soldiers who went away will be filled with the common use of the term. The rank of the American expeditionary force are filled with men skilled in almost every conceivable vocation and profession. These men have naturally benefited by their army training and are better qualified to fill good positions.

"Many soldiers are perhaps naturally reluctant to return to their homes away from New York, but if they remain here and seek employment it will operate to withhold jobs from New York men. Therefore such non-resident discharged soldiers should be encouraged to proceed immediately to their several homes where probably positions wait them.

"Preference in New York employment should be given to New York men. The same rule is applicable elsewhere. If this is followed, it will go a long way toward solving the whole problem."

THE STAGE

—By F. J. McIsaac—

Somebody once said that the difference between success and failure is just the breadth of a hair. That isn't quite so because I have seen failures that all the king's horses and men couldn't turn into success.

On the other hand "Seven Days' Leave" looked like a failure of that sort when it played the Majestic two seasons ago. Daniel Frohman, a very astute manager of a slightly earlier period brought the piece from London. After looking at the first performance he sold out his rights with great cheerfulness because he felt it was a goner.

Walter Jordon, the broker, who got the piece, felt that the stuff was in it despite the weakness of the production. So he called in Robert Campbell, son of the late Bartley Campbell, the most famous of American producers of melodrama of a past generation.

The piece was rebuilt, a couple of big scenes written in, a little solid British atmosphere rarified by American humor and, presto, it became New York's greatest melodramatic success of several seasons. Now they have courage enough to bring it back to Boston, and we are all invited to see how they make good ones out of bad ones.

A Friend of Bill's

Viva Burkette, who so ingeniously plays the indolent female described as the mollusc in the comedy of that name in which George Arliss is appearing at the Hollis, was an important member of the company with which Henry Jewett presented Shakespearean performances at the Boston Opera House three or four seasons ago.

Miss Burkette is an English girl, but she made her first appearance on the stage in this country, having been given a part in the Frohman production of "The Hypocrites." This piece went to England and took Miss Burkette with it, where she remained for several years.

After her Boston Opera House experiences Miss Burkette appeared in several Broadway productions, the most recent of which was "Peter Ibbetson," in which John Barrymore was the star. She is the wife of Phillip Merrivale, who, as it happens, plays her husband in "The Mollusc."

The role of the mollusc is one of the most difficult possible because the actress is prevented from using motion or gestures except of the most slight character. It forms a striking contrast to the activity of Arliss in this comedy.

Good Agent Gone.

Robert Ober, one of the chief funmakers of "She Walked in Her Sleep," was a member of the cast of "Pair and Warmer," which ran here an entire season with Madge Kennedy and John Arthur. Ober broke into the show business from "the front of the house." In other words, he started selling tickets at the Century Theatre in St. Louis. He also went "on ahead" of repertory companies, and therefore has a warm spot in his heart for Joe Dillon, the redundant publicity tooter for "She Walked in Her Sleep."

Opera experiences on the kerosene circuit, where the proprietor of the opera house usually had two or three other occupations, are not unique, but as he tells them very amusing.

"We were playing a small town in Iowa with a troop which did everything from 'Romeo' to 'Why Girls Leave Home.' We were booked there for three days, and as my train was late I had only a couple of hours to make all arrangements.

"The manager of the theatre was also a livery stable keeper, and like wise the village undertaker. I went to the theatre, but there I tackled the livery stable. Just as I was about to go crazy I saw a funeral procession winding down the main street. Wearing a plug hat and driving the hearse was my man, so a street urchin informed me.

What did I do? I stepped out in the road and stopped the funeral. The undertaker-manager found out who I was and motioned me to climb up beside him, and we drove on to the cemetery. By the time we arrived there I had made the booking arrangements. Then I gave him a hand lifting the coffin into the grave and lost mine on my train."

A good agent was spoiled when that boy became an actor. Irving Bill Sill or Joe Dillon stopping a hearse.

Shaw at Last Explained.

If Bernard Shaw could see what American press agents write about him his celebrated sense of humor might enable him to bear it, and it might not. I have on my desk a paragraph from Copley Hyde's agent. "Arms and the Man" is being presented up there. After explaining that Shaw is not an English playwright, but an Irishman, he adds:

"Not a small portion of his eccentricities are due to his Irish birth."

Just imagine Shaw when he hears that Irish birth is responsible for eccentricity. And imagine how it would amuse Dean Swift, Oliver Goldsmith, Sheridan, Boucicault and other Irish playwrights. The perplexity with which the Angle-Saxon has always regarded Irish art is so beautifully expressed in these few words.

Sill Sticks.

Fred Stone's thirteen-year-old daughter is causing that great comedian and wife, who plays the villainess in the "Jack o' Lantern," quite a little anxiety.

Miss Dorothy wants to break into the drama, and as Fred and wife must get an education before she picks a profession. In "Johnny Get Your Gun" the Stone photoplay, the youngster manages to make a debut by doing the same dance with her father that Violet Zell does in "Jack o' Lantern."

"Fred has been very careful that the theatre should not be prominent in the minds of our children," explained Mrs. Stone. "Dorothy could never extract any information from him since she was five, and though she teased for several years to have him show her his dancing steps he wouldn't do it. Finally one day she informed him that she had learned them any way, and proceeded to demonstrate.

"That settles it,' he declared when he discovered that she had actually accomplished this stunt. 'That kid has talent, and there isn't any use in my trying to block her. Since then he has helped her in every way, and she is really astonishingly proficient.'"

"She can do anything her father can do," croaked Bill Sill, the press agent. "Rope a steer. Throw a bronk."

"Here, here," interrupted Fred Stone. "Don't go too far. It takes 180 pounds of bone and muscle to rope a steer or throw a bronk."

"Well," asserted Bill, "that's my story, and I'll stick to it."

Husbands Can't Separate 'Em.

During the entire twenty-three years that the Dolly Sisters, Rozsika and Yansci, have inhabited this world they have been separated from each other for only nine weeks, and that was shortly after the pair were married, about four years ago. That experience—the separation, not the marriage—is the one horrible nightmare in the lives of these famous twins, who are now at the Shubert Theatre, where they are sharing with Harry Fox the leading roles in "Oh, Look!" a musical comedy success.

From the moment the Dolly Sisters first saw the light of day and kicked their little legs in an infantile prophecy of the future activities of those nimble limbs, until Yansci Dolly married Harry Fox in 1914, the twins were always together, waking, working and sleeping.

So far as being inseparable is concerned, they may as well have been joined together like the Siamese twins. The thought of being separated, even for an hour, never entered the head of either of the pretty twins until Dan Cupid entered into their lives. After Yansci and Fox were married the two received a huge offer for a headline tour in vaudeville, which was to extend over a period of twenty-four weeks, and during this time Rozsika Dolly was to remain in New York, appearing at the Winter Garden. But the sisters reckoned without consulting the irresistible call of nature.

From the moment Rozsika gave her farewell kiss to Yansci, as she and her husband stepped on the train at the Grand Central Station in New York, until the two were reunited some weeks later, neither of the Dolly sisters knew a moment's peace or happiness. They spent half the day on the long distance telephone and the rest of the day weeping and grieving. Both sisters lost their health, each lost weight, and after eight weeks of this sort of existence they decided that life without each other was unbearable. Mr. Fox therefore explained the situation to the vaudeville magnates, cancelled the rest of the tour and the sisters were reunited, each vowing that never again would they be separated for even a day.

One Tenor Accounted For.

Seeing him sprawling in an easy chair, in the character of Senator Connor in "Nothing But Lies," trying to appear as idiotic as possible, one would hardly recognize the William Tilley Hatch, operatic tenor of some years ago.

Born in Cleveland, O., Mr. Hatch early developed artistic and musical tendencies, and as a young man was studying in Paris, under Jullenne and others, portrait painting. As a side issue he took up vocal culture, having a natural tenor voice of great promise.

In a short time music received the major portion of his attention and he came back from Europe as a member of the Strakosch opera company. Followed trips to South America and the West Indies. In the tropics he acquired their special brand of fever and was laid up for eighteen months.

On his recovery he took up dramatic work and first appeared in "The Last Days of Pompeii" in the company of which Helena Collier, sister of William, was leading lady. Hatch playing opposite her.

Then followed twelve years more of music, light and comic opera, appearing in Stetson's company in "Nanki Poo in "The Mikado," as well as in many other roles.

Then drama again and 1907 found him in England playing in Cyril Walter's production of "The Squaw Man." Still later, on his return to this country he did a return to this country he did a turn in vaudeville and in character parts with William Gillette.

Sydney Hayes Scores.

One of the most emphatic individual successes scored by the company presenting "The Big Chance" at the Majestic Theatre is that of Miss Sydney Hayes in the role of Margaret Malloy. Those who have seen the play will readily recall the landlady's daughter, whose admirers are so numerous that her mother complains, when they foregather on the front door step of the Malloy home, that they resemble a mass meeting of the I. W. W. Although Miss Hayes did not create the role of Margaret, it is doubtful if it could be played with a finer understanding of character and delightful human nature; and judging by the great amount of laughter which greets her interpretation of the part, she is creating an impression on theatregoers that will make her greatly favorably remembered in Boston.

Sydney Hayes has been associated with the stage directly and indirectly ever since her birth. She is the daughter of the late Frank Hayes, well known to fame as the general press representative for the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger. She gave up the stage to marry Charles Hayes, one of the most beloved men in the theatrical world, who, at the time of his death a few months ago, was general manager for another well-known firm of New York producers, Selwyn & Co. Miss Hayes is now familiarly called by his associates, had worked at one time for Mr. Hayes, and on the latter's death manager who informed his widow that any time she wished to resume her stage career there would be an engagement waiting for her.

TREMONT TEMPLE.

"The Eternal Light," which the Catholic Art Film will present for the next fortnight at the Tremont Temple, is a very remarkable film which is based upon the life of Christ. It was arranged, directed and produced upon the most authentic Catholic history of the period of Christ. It received the indorsement of the Italian clergy, and has been most heartily indorsed by Cardinal O'Connell, who says that every Catholic should see it.

The pictures in no sense a "passion play," because it deals with the entire life of Christ rather than the passion. Nevertheless the scenes dealing with the crucifixion are among the most poignantly moving ever placed upon film.

It is in seven reels, there are wonderful color effects, and some revolutionary spectacular stunts. The Lotus Quartet will sing appropriate music.

ARLINGTON THEATRE

A play will be offered entirely new to Boston audiences to the Boston public and to the patrons of the Arlington Theatre next week. Its title is "Kick In," and although it has met with a cordial reception in other cities, it has never happened to be acted in Boston. The author is Willard Mack, an actor who is rapidly becoming a foremost and popular American dramatist. Including "Kick In," he has three great successes to his credit, the other two being "Tiger Rose" and "The Big Chance."

The production of "Kick In" at the Arlington Theatre will be complete in every detail and the company under the direction of Mr. Masson, will bring out the complete dramatic effect of the play.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

There will be a brace of headliners to lead the vaudeville bill to be presented the first half of the week at Lowe's Orpheum Theatre. The Chalfonte Sisters, gifted and highly trained dancers, whose beauty and grace of accomplishment in this art have won for them much praise, will present a program of unusual dances. The other bill-topper will be Julian Hall, an individual entertainer who has been styled "An Jazz Boy," and will provide many entertaining moments.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

"Salome," with Theda Bara as the notorious ward of Herod, celebrated in song and story, will begin an engagement extraordinary tomorrow at Gordon's Olympia. Miss Bara's proven proficiency as portrayer of supernormal warrants the assumption that in the character of Salome she, above all others, who interpreted the role in one guise or another, reveals the true psychology of this strange creature of history. A further virtue, it is pointed out, is that no undue liberties have been taken with the story for theatric effect.

A bill of vaudeville is provided of no light-hearted and joyous a nature that it forms a perfect foil for the marked tenseness of the feature picture.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Louise Dresser and Jack Gardner top the bill. Miss Dresser has won distinction in vaudeville, musical comedy and drama. In vaudeville she has been a single of topline importance, while she has been starred in musical comedy, "Shock-a-by Baby," and played the principal role in "Susan and Perlmutter." Jack Gardner will be remembered by those who saw him in "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Madame Sherry." Jack Gardner has but recently concluded a special engagement with the William Rock-Franklin White combination.

After an absence of almost four years, Walter C. Kelley, the Virginia judge, is back with a new set of Judge stories. As Walter Keiley has always been a great favorite in Boston he is assured a warm reception.

Nordstrom & Pinkham will present the season's most successful sketch, "The Memory Book," which was written by Miss Nordstrom.

GAYETY THEATRE

Commencing with Monday matinee the attraction at the Gayety Theatre will be an entirely new edition of Max Spiegel's "Merry Rounders," with Abe Reynolds and Florence Mills in the featured roles.

This is the fourth edition of the "Rounders," and is said to be entirely different from its predecessors. A two-act vehicle entitled "The Smugglers" forms the basis of the fun-making for the two acts. Mr. Spiegel has provided elaborate surroundings and costuming.

Engaged in the support of Reynolds and Miss Mills are John Quigg, a Gordon's Olympia specialist, C. Elwood Faber, a rural comedian, Mildred Tyson, a dainty mite of femininity cast in the soubrette role; Eva Sueli, a charming ingenue, and George Kinnear. A chorus of twenty-four young ladies add much to the entertainment.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

The variety of the bills announced for the week at Loew's Columbia Theatre promises good entertainment for the lovers of motion pictures who patronize this popular theatre. The custom of a daily change of bill gives the patrons plenteous chance to partake to the full of this variety, which results in most generous attendance. Each day's bill consists of two photoplays, news pictures and comedies.

McISAAC says that

GEORGE ARLISS in "The Mollusc" and "The Well Remembered Voice" offers a nicely contrasted double bill which gives him striking opportunity for good acting. Hollis.

"OH LOOK," the musical melange at the Shubert, offers the Dolly Sisters, Henry Fox and a big list of principals and chorus in a very lively entertainment.

MARY NASH, in "The Big Chance," begins her last week in Boston at the Majestic. It is an interesting and well-played melodrama with a background of war.

"ADAM AND EVA," the Bolton and Middleton comedy at the Park Square, is a sweet and cheerful trifle, beautifully played and well worth a visit.

WILLIAM COLLIER, in "Nothing But Lies," has a typical Collier show, which means two hours and a half of hearty laughter. Wilbur.

"THE RAINBOW GIRL" continues its gay career at the Tremont. It is a fantastical musical comedy at no would likes to see.

FRED STONE, in "Jack o' Lantern," at the Colonial, might remain an entire season in that jovial extravaganza, but his stay is rapidly growing shorter.

"SHE WALKED IN HER SLEEP," at the Plymouth, is a very spirited farce, played by clever people, and full of laughable situations.

"ARMS AND THE MAN," Bernard Shaw's mirthful comedy, will be retained for another week by the Henry Jewett company at the Copley.

LANCASTER THEATRE

Remarkable quality is the outstanding feature of the two bills of players announced for the week at the Lancaster Theatre. During the first half there will be offered Pauline Frederick in the pictured version of Eugene Walter's remarkable play, "Paid In Full." This masterpiece of the theater dramatist held long and honored place on the stage, and its heroine has been played by many famous actresses. But it has remained for the screen version and the gifts of Pauline Frederick to bring even greater power to the story of the weak husband who was willing to sacrifice honor for gain. The other photoplay will show George Walsh in "Say Dad."

The other photoplay, also to be given its first showings in Boston, will be "Peggy Pelly," picturing Dorothy Gish in the title role. This has an unusual story admixed of comedy and serious situations.

MODERN THEATRE

Geraldine Farrar makes another visit to the screen and in "The Stronger Vow" she will be shown in pictured acting for the first times in Boston at the Modern Theatre throughout the week. The preliminary announcements promise that this photoplay will reveal the singer-actress in a role of much contrast, giving her opportunity to exploit her more favored gifts of emotional acting. A suggestion of the story has not been offered for advance information, save that it is a modern one which will allow for the wearing of some startling gowns. The accompanying prologue will show Dorothy Gish, famed screen star for long under the Griffith banner and referred to as "the little disturbee of the screen," who will be shown also for the first time in "Peggy Pelly," in which she enacts a girl secretary to a State Judge.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE

George Arliss in the double bill including "The Mollusc" and "A Well Remembered Voice," begins his fifth week at the Hollis Street Theatre with the general concession of public opinion that this is one of his most distinctive of theatrical offerings. There only remains this fortnight of the present engagement as the attraction departs Saturday, April 12. Hubert Henry Davies' comedy is generally granted as one of the most brilliant comedies in modern English literature, and Mr. Arliss, together with his admirable company acts it with a cheery zest that makes it the more magnificently enjoyable.

FENWAY THEATRE.

You have heard from our own boys, who have returned, of the wonderful things the Salvation Army did "over there." Now see the select picture, "The Belle of New York," and learn of the wonderful things they are doing right here at home. Marion Davies, called the most beautiful girl in pictures, is the star, and she has the able support of Ziegfeld's beauty chorus. The other feature for the first three days of the week is entitled "Men," starring Charlotte Walker, an unusual double love story that will appeal to all. The comedy feature has Mr. and Mrs. Drew in "The Amateur Liar," in which Mr. Drew gets into his regular matrimonial tangle.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE

Theatre-goers, not only of Boston but of New England generally, have already begun to manifest a lively interest in the coming engagement of Al Jolson in that greatest of New York Winter Garden shows, "Sinbad," which will be the attraction at the Boston Opera House, beginning Easter Monday, April 21. While the ticket office sales at the Opera House and the general ticket offices in the Little Building lobby will not open until a week or ten days in advance of the engagement it has already been announced that mail orders will be received now and filed in the order of their receipt as soon as the ticket sale begins, and the orders are pouring in rapidly. It will be rather unusual for Mr. Jolson to play his engagement outside of the Shubert Theatre, but this is a very unusual attraction and it requires a theatre of unusual seating capacity to take care of the big business anticipated.

NEW WALDORF THEATRE

The great popularity enjoyed by the New Waldorf Theatre is directly attributable to the excellent programs offered at the house, and the announcement for the week assures a continuation of this same high standard of excellence. During the first half there will be presented Diamond and Brennan, popular singers and comedians of established prominence; Hall and De Lay, a pair of exceptionally clever singers and dancers. Miss Hall having been one of the features of the cabaret scene in the play, "The Man Who Came Back." Alfred Latell and Company in a novel sailor, Greek and Parker, singers and comedians, and "Grey and Old Rose," a beautifully costumed and artistic dancing act. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy and a new photoplay.

EASTER CONCERT

Preparations are rapidly becoming completed for the annual Easter Sunday concert presented each season by Thomas B. Lothian, business manager of the Colonial Theatre, and Grover Burkhardt and Frank Cauley of the Copley Theatre. It will be given Sunday evenin, April 20.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQUARE

Bought at a price which is said to break all records, and in face of the most spirited competition from rival houses for screen rights, that most famous of all musical plays, "The Bells of New York" was secured for Marion Davies, and Greater Bostonians will view the wonderful result this week at Gordon's Central Square, Cambridge Theatre.

Allow C. A. Wotton Will

"Flo-Flo" Coming April 21

With the clean-cut comedian Andrew Tombes as the chief mirth provoker and Rena Parker as Flo-Flo, the irresistible coquette, assisted by the other principals who appeared in the musical comedy for many months at the Cort Theatre in New York last season, "Flo-Flo" will open an engagement at the Tremont Theatre Monday, April 21st. "Flo-Flo" is said to be conspicuous by its pretty girls.

The annual Sunday concert given each season by Henry Taylor and Vincent Fetherstone, of the Hollis Street Theatre staff, will be given at that house on Sunday evening, April 27. Preparations have been in progress for the event, and the gentlemen assure their many friends that they are positive this season's concert will excel their previous presentations. The advance demand for seats indicates that there will be a generous attendance.

Cudworth Estate $20,000

Edwin C. Burbank of Malden has been appointed administrator of the estate of Benjamin S. Cudworth of Melrose. The estate is valued at $20,000.

MASTER BILLY PROBST, of the Paulist Choristers, who has been termed "The Boy Galli-Curci."

BOY CHORISTER NOTED AS A SOLOIST

Master Billy Probst, the "Mocking Bird," on as some critics have called him, "the boy Galli-Curci," will make his premier appearances in Boston as a soloist with the Paulist Choristers at Symphony Hall on the evening of April 10.

Master Billy is the youngest of the Probst trio, which has been associated with the Paulist Choristers' organization for several years. His brother, Stanley Probst, began his musical career as a boy soprano in this choir and sang before the Pope when the choir made its epoch-making visit to the Vatican in 1912. He is now one of the tenors in the present organization.

Another brother, Nicholas, is one of the sensational boy contraltos of the organization. He is now one of the leading spirits in more senses than one among the countertenors.

Master Billy is a favorite with all audiences and receives his encores with as naive a simplicity and lack of self-consciousness that he entrances all who listen to his singing. This on the part of a boy singer is something worthy to be noted.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM

It is seldom that a stock organization, especially those of suburban cities, retains an attraction for more than a single week. Once in a great while, however, this rule is broken, the instances in a majority of cases being applied to metropolitan aggregations. The Temple Stock Company at the Malden Auditorium, Malden, nevertheless, comes forward with the announcement that owing to insistent demand of its many patrons "The Eyes of Youth," which they have been presenting with extraordinary success the past week, will be retained for another week, consulting its engagement with the performance of next Saturday evening, April 12. The leading role affords Miss Adelyn Bushnell, the talented leading lady of the organization, wide scope for the display of her rare personality and gifted versatility. Daily matinees are given at the Auditorium, Non-resident patrons will facilitate their arrival by leaving all elevated trains at the Everett terminal.

LAURETTE TAYLOR

The long-deferred and as often expected engagement of Lauriette Taylor is announced at the Hollis Street Theatre to begin Monday evening, April 21, when she will appear in "Happiness," a comedy in three acts by J. Hartley Manners. Announced to come here last September, the influenza epidemic intervened to prevent her further travels. Chicago has seen her and responded in albeit somewhat cool fashion. Philadelphia likewise is now paying like tribute.

'ETERNAL LIGHT' PORTRAYS LIFE OF JESUS

Those who are fortunate enough to see "The Eternal Light," the picture that will begin a limited run at Tremont Temple on Monday evening, April 7, will be particularly impressed with the work of Giovanni Pasquali who portrays the character of Our Lord. His interpreta from the famous painting, Jesus of Nazareth, as conceived by Fra Angelico. Pasquali's portrayal of the leading role is distinguished by craftsmanship of the highest order. His presentation of Our Lord is remarkable for its reverence, its striking emotional ability, and the plaintive pathos in the pencil chords of suffering, meekness and self-sacrifice predominant in the character of Our Savior.

Pasquali never before played in moving pictures, but was a young lawyer with a fast growing practice in Rome. The directors of the picture decided that they would interpret the part from Angelico's masterpiece, and set about to find the proper character to portray it. It took weeks to find the person who best answered the likeness in the painting. It was Pasquali. When the question was presented to him, Pasquali believed it to be a duty to fill the part, as he considered it took many weeks of training before he reached the stage of wonderful interpretation that is shown in the picture. Those who have seen him declare that he is a born actor.

Foote a Movie Devotee.

Courtenay Foote of the "Adam and Eva" company, which begins an engagement at Selwyn's Park Theatre tomorrow night, is one of the few actors on the legitimate stage who will admit that he enjoys playing in the movies.

"I like to work in the pictures," he says, "though not in the East. Out in California, where one can have a bungalow, a car and the nicest sort of climate, one can live happily and economily. In the East, in New York, one has to rush over to Fort Lee or around on Sixth Avenue, to some unpicturesque location that can be imagined, and by the manner in no dreadfully hot or dreadfully cold. But the West—there we are like one big family, all interested in the same thing—pictures!"

In 1916, however, Mr. Foote decided to get away from the pictures. Since then he has devoted practically all of his time to the theatre and to his love. He broke over for some reason and left the shuffle of the pictures, and now he confesses he may go back to them permanently after his engagement in "Adam and Eva."

LYDIA GYSS, as the Madonna in "The Eternal Light," which begins a limited run at the Tremont Temple on Monday.

His most recent pictures were "Love's Conquest" with Lina Cavalieri, "Cross Currents" and "An International Marriage."

Mr. Foote was born in England, and is an Oxford man. For a time he studied civil engineering. Then the lure of stage got him in well-known work and he became an actor.

A Dancing Playwright.

The dancing of Harry Delf is one of the big features of "The Rainbow Girl" which has just managed to procure another week in Boston, its return engagement has been so successful.

Harry says he never took a dancing lesson in his life. He is in sublime ignorance of the technique of the dance, but his soul is full of motion and he can no more help creating dancing steps than he can help sleeping every day or so.

Harry has a headpiece on him which is more than can be said of most dancers. He wrote words and music of a musical comedy which was presented at the Tremont Theatre last Fall by Joseph Klaw, and though the piece did not last very long it contained lots of good stuff.

When he saw his play produced he was wearing the uniform of a Gob of the U. S. Navy. Delf is a graduate of the City College of New York. He was a wizard at diving, broad jumping, running and dancing. He made a college record of eight feet ten inches in the standing broad jump.

Since he went on the stage he has appeared in Cohan's 1916 Revue, "Hello Broadway," Winter Garden and "The Rainbow Girl."

Another Mack Comedy.

Willard Mack, who wrote "Kick In," which is to have its first production in Boston at the Arlington Theatre on Monday, is one of a long line of actors who have written successful plays. If his success continues, as it undoubtedly will, the public will forget that Mr. Mack ever was an actor, but he himself can never forget, for it is his experience behind the footlights and his contact with audiences that enables him to write popular plays. He has felt the public pulse as a doctor feels his patient's pulse, and he knows exactly what they want. Evidence of that ability on his part is clearly revealed in "Tiger Rose," for instance, which, under the management of David Belasco, has proved one of the sensations of the last few seasons. Also the "Unchastened Woman," now at the Majestic. And in "Kick In," he caught the popular fancy at once, for that drama is one of the very first of the "Crook Plays" that are now all the rage. At the Arlington Theatre, Dudley Ayres will appear as Chick Hewes, the boss, a part that is has already played under the dramatist's own personal direction.

BRAVES REPEAT OVER TIGERS; COUNT, 15-9

By NICK FLATLEY.

Macon, Ga., April 5.—The conquering Braves arrived here in the chill, gloomy hours of the morning, prepared to continue their triumphant drive against the Tigers.

This happens to be the home camp of the Detroit outfit, but that didn't make the slightest difference in the respective lives of the various Braves.

They made the series two for themselves and none for the other fellows, over at Albany, by 8 15-9 tally. It was a game that put in the shade any of the weird performances that used to startle the fans up at the old Walnole street bandbox.

The Tigers led in the matter of clearing the barriers, but their pitchers were overly wild, and their hitting wasn't as nifty synchronized as that of the victors.

Just to show what kind of a game it was, there were eighteen bases on balls passed around, a flock of wild pitches and plenty of errors, but the grass receipts went over the $1,800 guarantee and the Braves won, so the day was a complete success.

Lefty George did the initial hurling for Stallings, but he, meaning Lefty, ran amuck in the fourth and drifted out of the game with five runs against his otherwise proud record.

Big Jack Scott concluded affairs and was much better, although he didn't pitch what you might call world's series baseball.

A LONDON DECISION

THERE seems to be some chirping as to whether a fight with no decision is better than no fight with a decision. Philly has the first kind and London the last.

* * *

FIGHT bugs would rather pipe a good ballyhoo with a flivver verdict than a flivver scuffle with a good decision. But when both the crime and the judge's verdict are duds, you can't blame the fight fans for thinking the worm in the chestnut is twins.

* * *

Almost Perfect

THE best feature about London boxing is that the third man isn't allowed in the ring. The son-of-a-marine-chef shouldn't be allowed in the building.

* * *

Lynch and Wilde

CREDIT should be donated to Wilde for staking Lynch to sixteen pounds of bone and sinew. We don't know how much was bone and how much was sinew, but the first is more valuable when it comes to shedding blows from the brow. A good bonecial skull is punchproof.

The dope on their recent tableau vivant in London shows that Lynch grabbed eleven out of fifteen rounds. According to the old adding machinery, this gave him the nomination by a few yards of majority. But when the returns from the outlying referees came in, Lynch piped that the ballot box had been stuffed like an Xmas turkey.

There is no use squawking at a National Sporting Club decision, but even the most conservative London paper admitted that the referee may have awakened at the wrong time.

* * *

Some London Press Chirps

THE YEARLY NEWS (Published daily).—Lynch had Wilde sniping out paper dolls for eleven stanzas last night, but lost the decision in the sixteenth round. It was a fifteen-round fight.

THE WEAKLY.—We don't know whether the bally referee was a believer in the occult, but those smacks Wilde took on the jaw weren't spiritualistic rappings by a blooming jugful. The referee handed up his decision on a slate covered with queer hieroglyphics which he claimed were written by his lamented uncle.

THE LONDON GOOP.—We can't agree with our bounding contemporaries that Lynch was the winner. We admit that Wilde was badly chewed up, but there is something more to a fight than the mere brawling and punching. Lynch is a bruiser, while Wilde is the scientific fighter who skips from gong to gong like a barefooted Greek dancer in a briar patch. His footwork was marvelous, and while Lynch landed the most blows, Wilde was the more graceful of the two.

THE SPORTING GAZETTE.—When a cow gets hit by a railroad train the jury doesn't award the damages to the engineer. It's the farmer who grabs the verdict. Which is the reason why the referee gave the decision to Wilde's manager. Wilde was the cow.

Chinese Scoring System

THE English boxing system is "protect yourself at all times, and may the best man lose." Ducking, sprinting and other field events all horn into the scoring. If the loser parries 4,567 knuckles with his nose, he wins because of his excellent judgment of distance. Didn't miss the other bird's fist once.

If he absorbs 475 busts on the chinpiece and ducks the same number, he wins because of his wonderful dodging. If the loser gallops around the works with the winner trying to hang one on his beezer, the loser wins because the winner didn't tag him.

HARVARD 1922 OARSMAN UNDERGOES OPERATION

John Crocker of Fitchburg, No. 5 on the Harvard freshman crew, was reported resting comfortably this morning after having been operated on for appendicitis. He is one of the best men in the yearling eight, which is conceded to be about the fastest on the Charles in the past twelve years. Crocker is a graduate of Groton School.

BABE'S MIGHTY HOMER BEATS GIANTS, 5-3

By JACK CONWAY.

Tampa, Fla., April 5.—Battering Babe Ruth declares he is perfectly satisfied with the way they do the pitching in the National League, as the Red Sox pressed to make it two straight over the Giants here today. Yesterday's score: Red Sox, 5; Giants, 3.

The fence-buster smashed out a home run and a single in his four times at bat in the opening frolic. His circuit wallop cleared the railing in centre field and landed in the middle of the race track.

It was the longest hit ever made on Plank Field, and for distance equalled Ruth's drive into the centre field bleachers at Fenway Park last Summer.

Babe's terrific clout caused the Giants to become disorganized, and before they recovered themselves the Red Sox had scored four runs, which practically put the game on ice, as McGraw's men made a couple of errors.

BABE TO BE REGULAR.

Since he was called to task by Barrow, Ruth has been working much harder than he was when he first reported. He has reduced in weight and is displaying plenty of speed. As for batting, we refer you to Messrs. George Smith and Winters of New York.

Ruth will play left field at the start of the season against right-handed hurlers while Dugan will work around the southpaws. In event Dug is still fail to find his batting eye he will receive an opportunity to perform every day.

The big fellow is able to get all kinds of fly balls. His only earthly weakness as an outfielder is his failure to come in on safe hits and get the ball back to the infield in time to prevent a base runner from going from first to third, or from second to home.

BUSH STARTS TODAY.

Ruth waits for the ball to come to him. As a result, the Giants did not experience any trouble in the opener in making the dash from first to third on hits into Babe's territory. And the New York players are anything but Ty Cobbs and George Sislers on the paths.

Joe Bush and either Sam Jones or George Dumont were booked to do the sharpshooting against the Giants today. All three men are in fairly good condition.

Mays and Pennock showed to advantage in the first clash. Mays, of course, was expected to perform well, as he is the best pitcher in the Harrow fold.

U. OF M. NINE WILL BE AT ITS BEST FOR TUFTS

The newly-formed University of Massachusetts nine opens its season next Saturday, clashing with Tufts. Coach Gaston, a former Holy Cross baseball star, plans having Dodice, ex-Groton School, and Christie, ex-Fordham, divide the slab work. Hartigan will be on first Kolaski on second, Wayland on third, Antonio at short, Tatrault, Gittens and Michaelson in the outfield and Murphy and Cleveland behind the bat.

FITZPATRICK ON SLAB IN WEST POINT GAME

West Point, N. Y., April 5.—Boston College was out to repeat its victory of last Spring over the Cadets in the first game of the season on the Plains. Fitzpatrick and Urban, who turned the trick a year ago, again did battery work for the visitors. Coach Gildea shifted Bill Dempsey back to centre field as game time.

SWIMMER ROSS GETS NEW HALF-MILE MARK

Chicago, April 5.—Norman Ross, Illinois A. C., hung up a new half-mile swimming record in competition. He negotiated the distance with a crawl stroke in 10:55 2-5. The old record was 11:14 1-5.

DOWNES-BERGIN BOUT PROVES A FLIVVER

By RINGSIDE.

Johnny Downes of South Boston, and Charley Bergin of New Haven, Ct., two mittists who generally please, were guilty of putting up a very sad skit at the Commercial A. C.

However, thanks to Referee Larry Conley, they didn't get away with it and must secure a clean bill of laden before they will be allowed to do any more battling in Greater Boston (or New England) rings.

They appeared to be in the ring to do the brother act, and, after being hooed by the fans and warned by Conley, were eventually run out of the ring in the eighth round.

"It's no contest" announced Conley. He did the right thing in banning them, though both deserved to be given the air much earlier in the bout.

Downes appeared to be in the ring to mix with his adversary, but he was no contest; it was nothing at all, at all, save a daring attempt to get the money without hustling for it.

Johnny Greay of Chelsea defeated Tommy Moore of Providence in ten rounds. It wasn't much of a mill.

Mike Kearns, Detroit lightweight, a newcomer hereabouts, proved he can hit by knocking Joe Riley of Troy, N. Y., in the second stanza. Riley went down for the count of nine four times before being handed his quietus.

In the curtain-raiser Phil Christie appeared to have at least held his own with Young Leonard, but the latter secured Conley's award.

Boxing News

Matchmaker George Freeman of the Fenway A. A. has hit his stride at last, and the menu for next Wednesday night smacks of the real article. Young Sacco and Harry Carlson come together in the main bout, while those old rivals Terry Brooks and Joe Connolly, collide in the semi-final.

Benny Valger, French Flash, and the most likely candidate in sight, to take away Johnny Kilbane's featherweight title, and Ralph Brady of Syracuse, one of the best in the 133-135-pound class, will head the preliminary A. A show next Tuesday night.

Matchmaker Ivy Lewis of the Armory A. A. has signed Eddie Fitzsimmons of New York and Charley White of Chicago for the main bout at the Grand Opera House April 22. Bobby Jeschke and Barney Snyder come together at the club April 15.

* * *

Frank Damnico of Marlboro vs. Turkey Armanda of Hudson, four rounds.

Al Caisone of Milford vs. Chicken Polo of Lynn, six rounds.

Jim McKenna of Webster vs. Frank Chaney of Neachmont, eight rounds.

Chick West of Holyoke vs. Johnny Veto of Chelsea, twelve rounds.

Young Ahearn, Brooklyn welterweight, a battler who was as good as they came in the Queensberry game a few years back, is now hanging out in Boston. He's in Joe McCarthy's employ and the fourth Boston manager wants to sign him with the best of the 145-15-pounders, meaning Jack Britton down. Ahearn has been idle for the past two years. He's only twenty-five, looks to be in tip-top trim, and, when going in high a few years back beat the best of them in Brooklyn and Philadelphia rings.

INDOOR TENNIS TITLE ANNEXED BY RICHARDS

New York, April 5.—Vincent Richards of Yonkers defeated William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia, in the finals of the national singles indoor tennis tournaments, 1—5, 6—3, 6—3, 6—1, 6—4.

SCHOOLBOY SPORTS

CLARENCE TAFT, BOSTON LATIN SCHOOL, JUNIOR COMPETITOR IN THE 35-YD. DASH AND 160-YD. RUN.

Dubber O'Connor, captain of the Cambridge Latin baseball team, will hold down his old position in left field.

* * *

Captain Ed Scollard and E. Anderson, who formed last year's Lynn Classical High battery, are the only veterans out for the team. Coach W. Kensie has had the team practicing at the Little River Playground for the past week and has discovered several promising players.

* * *

Jigger Jones, St. John's Prep's former athletic director, has been awarded a distinguished service cross by General Pershing. He was recently promoted to the rank of captain in the U. S. Army.

* * *

Coach Sexton of Lynn English High starts the baseball season with seven letter-men. Centre field and third base are the only positions to be filled. The team has been practicing on Centre Field, and it looks as if a winner will be turned out.

* * *

McLehan and Hurlihy will be the mainstays of the pitching staff at Cambridge Latin. McLarron will be the third slabman.

* * *

Church and Burns, forwards of the St. John's basketball team scored 11 baskets between them during the season.

* * *

Mortimer, the classy junior runner, who won the 35-yard dash at the regionals, is a candidate for the Lynn Classical High nine.

* * *

Clavin, Lynn English's husky pitcher, has been released from the Marines. He was in training down South and is the picture of health. It looks as if he will have a big year on the mound.

* * *

Coach McDonald should be able to build up a great team at Cambridge Latin, as he has five veterans returning, namely Captain O'Connor, Cote, Zarkov, Curry and McGoivan. The only position in the infield to be filled is third base, and there is a scrap between Hurley and Dambronio for that berth.

* * *

Midge Shay, young brother of Marty Shay, who is coaching the Harvard freshmen team, is helping Coach Prendergast with the Dorchester High squad.

The Middlesex School and Concord High nines were scheduled to play on the former's field this afternoon. Charley Lee and Elmer Duggan were the rival pilots.

Owing to the war there is a scarcity of good polo ponies, and owing to the expense of the sport there will probably be fewer plays in London this season than in 1914.

The Social Club's cup will furnish the opening fixture with the pre-war polo outing the third week in May. The tournament is regarded as the prelude to the season's main competition.

Where the Dodgers won the opening skit, with the Yankees taking the second, the National Leaguers landed right side up in the lofty score of 11-3 Thursday. So it's that atrocious defeat Huggins wants Shore to wipe out.

This Day in History—April 5, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the compromise of Poredo, in 1566, in which the Dutch nobles presented a protest against the methods of the Inquisition then in their full swing under the fanatical kingship of Philip II. of Spain. After drenching the Netherlands in blood, Spain lost them forever.

A Good Sauce

WHEN you get tired of plain roast mutton pour the following over the meat before serving: Heat half a pint of milk and season with pepper and salt. When it boils drop in half a dozen shallots, finely chopped, and a little chopped parsley. Cook gently until the shallots are tender. A small quantity of vinegar may be added finally.

"BREAK THE NEWS TO MOTHER"

A Thrilling Film Serial

An Absorbing Story of the Love of a Rich Girl for a Poor Man Who Finally Justifies Her Choice

By A. A. Waterbury.

Novelized from the film production, "Break the News to Mother," soon to be seen on the screen.

IT must be said of the early years of Warren Flint, before he became superintendent for Howard Godwin, head of the iron works in Schuyler, he never made a record for any girl except pretty Edna Holmes, who had once lived near him in the old days.

It was an open secret among the neighbors that Edna would become the wife of Warren Flint as soon as he had lifted himself up a little on the ladder of life and secured a home for herself.

Perhaps she had reflected at times that man are queer beings for Warren always impressed upon her the need of secrecy.

"I don't quite see why we should not keep the good news to ourselves," she would say, "for after the guest meeting we're going to be ashamed of it. I'm proud that you want to marry me, and I hope you love me enough to like other people to know."

"Now see here, Edna, I am getting along very well just now, but it wouldn't do for me to dawdle even to think that I was planning to get married. It is a serious affair and not to be taken lightly."

The girl was not to be much blinded by the flaring of this reasoning but she went on her way trusting and waiting for the happy day when the wife would be [illegible]

THE DARK STAR

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

"WHEN did you do—it?" demanded Stanley coldly.

"This morning at seven. I just stepped over to the garage. I'm talking to Ned from the office. She's back by the telephone waiting, I guess. Better go over yourself till I see you."

"Same to you, Leslie. And be leery of Max Heck and When they disbar a lawyer he's twice as dangerous as he was his ex-partner. Ask your friend, a certain party's attorney of record. Ask yourself what you'd be up against if that pair of wolves got started after you. You know what Max would do to you if he could. And Minola, too."

"Don't worry."

"I am worrying. I'm thought you knew what you were up against. Max. Don't think, because you've got Minola, that you've got her safe as Sinus will."

Brandes' stolid face took a little of its sanguine color, where he stood in the telephone booth behind the bar of the Garfield House.

Yes, he knew what Leslie meant. He had got Minola, and he had got her all right, but Leslie was looking out for the Amazon blacksmith, for a man who had the brains for two of Leslie and Gottlieb-ed, and paying steady court to the prettiest girl in Attalanta, Lee Dumont.

And Brandes' Unknown had almost killed Max Venemn and Jack Smith. Brandes had taken Max Venemn's money and [illegible] more than that he had to [illegible] girl, in the theatrical sense of the word; and he had not lost her beauty and her voice and all to out with both.

Stocks Irregular at Close of New York Market

STEELS LOWER AND RAILS ACTIVE

Specialties Strong and Active; Market Reflects Foreign and Domestic Doubts

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at the close, with U. S. Steel at its lowest for the day, 97 and off 1¼ to 1¾. It was weak after the initial sale. A number of other leading speculative issues also finished weak, including Bethlehem B, Baldwin, Mexican preferred and Studebaker. They all receded near the end. Steels and rails were weak groups. Coppers were firm, oils irregular and motors on a lower level. The tone was heavy at the finish. A number of strong specialties were affected by the late recessional. The market was active.

Total sales of stocks today were 549,100 shares; bonds, $6,995,000. Total sales of stock for the week were 4,608,600 shares; bonds, $34,000,000.

CLOSING DECLINES AND GAINS.

Among declines at the close were Bethlehem B ⅝ at 69¾, Reading ¼ at 85, Southern Pacific ⅛ at 94⅝, Union Pacific ⅛ at 119¾, Baldwin preferred ⅝ at 113¾, Mexican Petroleum ⅛ at 131½, Texas Co. 1 at 215, Studebaker Motors ⅛ at 170½, Corn Products ⅛ at 49⅜, Baldwin ⅛ at 35¾ and Studebaker ⅝ at 64¼.

Gains included Anaconda ⅛ at 62⅝, Inspiration ⅛ at 48⅜, Utah Copper ⅛ at 76, Pierce Oil 1⅛ at 19⅝, General Cigar ⅛ at 95, American Interna tional Corporation 3⅛ at 74⅝, after selling at 74⅞, its highest record price; Atlantic Gulf ⅛ at 124, after selling at 124⅝, its highest for the year; Ajax Rubber 2⅛ at 78⅝, Industrial common 2 at 39½, preferred 1 at 64⅛, and U. S. Rubber ¾ at 147⅜.

MARKET HAD FIRM OPENING.

The market was firm at the opening, with U. S. Steel showing a small gain in initial transactions, and the list as a whole averaged a trifle higher. Traders were cautious about commitments not only because it was a week-end session, but on account of uncertainty as to the situation at Paris and unsettled affairs at Washington affecting commerce. There seemed to be general belief that steel products would go to a lower level, and the prominent influence upon the prices of basic materials in general would be less than Federal officials had planned. There was the usual Saturday disposition to close out and take no risks, and this increased the supply of stocks.

SPECIALTIES WERE ACTIVE.

A number of specialties were active, including Industrial Alcohol issues, which reflected the demand for agricultural machinery. Shares of Owens Bottle, National Conduit, which is getting attention because there is a world shortage of cable supplies; National Acme, General Cigar and Ajax Rubber 2d's, with the outlook for shipping interests sent American International Corporation to a highest record price. Oil trade prospects caused unusual demand and American dropped 2 which sold at its highest since 1912. Beth Sugar again sold at its high for this year.

BOSTON ELEVATED ON THE RISE.

The local market was firm at the opening, with Boston Elevated the feature. It opened at 79½, an advance overnight of ¾, and soon sold higher still. Before the session closed it had sold at its highest since 1917. Boston and Maine started with a fractional gain. New Haven began unchanged and then declined. It was neglected by traders. Northern Pacific coppers was inconsequential. There was activity in United Shoe and public ser issues were narrow in range. The Boston market was not a buying or a downward trend in the second hour.

The Boston market was irregular at the end, with a number of leading stocks unchanged. Gains included Boston Elevated, 1 at 79¾, Swift, ⅛ at 103½; Libby, ⅛ at 29; United Shoe, 1 at 50½; United Fruit, ¼ at 124; Boston & Maine, ⅞ at 44, and Mohawk, ¼ at 81. Among declines were Reading, ¼ at 85⅝; Isle Royale, ¼ at 26⅜; Boston & Maine, ⅛ at 32; New Haven, ⅝ at 34¾, and Swift International, 1 at 69.

COTTON MARKET OPENED STEADY AND ACTIVE

New York, April 5.—The cotton market opened fairly active today with a steady tone, showing a net rise of 10 to 15 points on the session and a partial upturn of 9 points on new styles. The feature was moderate early covering by shorts in trade a buyer of new style near positions. At the end of the first 20 minutes the market was steady at 4 points lower to 2 points net higher.

Opening prices were: May, old 24.50, new 25.70; July, old 28.19, new 29.45; October, old 26.80, new 28.00; December, old 19.75 bid; December, new 29.87; March, new 26.95 bid.

Cotton closed steady. STEEL DISPUTE DISTURBING TRADE

Business Men Hope for Harmonious Policy by Federal Officials

The effect upon business of the controversy between government officials over steel prices is as much discussed in trade circles as the merits of the situation. It is general belief that unless there is harmony as to commodity prices at Washington limited buying on the part of corporation and other private consumers will continue, leaving aside any failure to place Federal orders. Many steel consumers are still hoping for a further reduction, and users of other commodities will continue to buy from hand-to-mouth until they are assured that rates will be cut no more.

BUSINESS AND LABOR SUFFER.

Business in general has been held up for weeks on uncertainty as to what labor and material is to cost, and it is said that the ranks of the unemployed are to be filled more daily by large numbers aside from returning soldiers. The consensus of opinion among business men is that if the government is to take a hand in the industry operate under them except at a loss without reducing wages. That is something everybody wishes to avoid.

While wages have remained unchanged prices of products have risen twice since the armistice was signed, labor is said to represent 85 per cent. of production costs.

HIGHER PAY, SMALLER TONNAGE.

Reports by the U. S. Steel Corporation show that employees share now wages have increased and tonnage production decreased per man during the war. The wage per ton paid by the Steel Corporation in 1917 was $15.03, while in 1918 it was $32.68, and decreased efficiency is indicated by the fact that production per man in 1915 was 62 tons compared with 52 tons in 1918. The wage per ton paid by the Republic Iron and Steel Company in 1917 was $5.30, compared with $23.30 in 1918, and Riverside Steel's wage cost per ton rose from $18.86 in 1915 to $29.44 in 1918.

COPPER METAL DEMAND FAILS TO INCREASE

The demand for copper metal has been meagre as the most and the spasmodic character of transactions indicates that buyers are in the market only for temporary requirements. It is said that latest quotations by all sellers are 23½@23¾ cents.

There is encouragement for future business in the statement that the world's shortage of cables amounts to 2,000,000 miles. Copper needs of the telephone and telegraph companies in this country are estimated at about 375,000,000 pounds.

As to freight trade prospects, while ocean freight rates in United Kingdom, France and Italy are large, they are lower than the small consumers in European railway electrification projects are extended. But it will be difficult to obtain ocean tonnage for such improvements for some time, Germany is known to be short of copper, and will be in the market for a large amount as soon as peace is declared. But it is said that financing such buying by that country will be "a delicate matter."

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, April 5.—The sub-treasury gained $1,500,000 from the banks on Friday.

Houghton & Dutton Trade With Fine Line

That Boston is getting the pace for other cities is shown by the addition of Houghton & Dutton's new department, showing a complete line of both established and unguaranteed automobile tires, tubes and a large variety of accessories.

The leading department stores throughout the country have recognized the necessity of such a department and it is in line with the usual progressive policy of the Houghton & Dutton Company.

Consistent with the same high standard of quality maintained throughout their entire store only the best makes of standard tires and tubes will be handled. They made a thorough canvass and study of trade conditions before announcing the new department and now are in a position to satisfy every class of buyer in this line of merchandise.

They have a unique selling plan in their unguaranteed tire, which means that they have arranged to offer a real "first" tire at the price of a second by eliminating the usual mileage guarantee.

Big Advertising Agency Entertains Notable Guests at Banquet

Philadelphia, April 5.—A half century of advertising history was brought to an auspicious close here last night by one of the largest agencies of advertisers, advertising men, publishers and captains of industry ever gathered together.

Nearly a thousand of these leaders of the advertising business celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of N. W. Ayer & Son, the oldest and largest advertising agency in the country, by a banquet in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

The event was notable not only because of the eminence of the guests present, but because it marked a milestone in the progress of one of the most respected and powerful of constructive forces in American business. It brings to the minds of those who have been associated with the advertising business since its early beginning the part played by N. W. Ayer & Son in building it up.

MANY A SPEAKER.

The speakers at the banquet were ex-President William Howard Taft, Victor Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News; Earl D. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining Company; N. C. Kingsbury, vice-president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company; Edward W. Bok, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal; Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Company, and members of the firm; Albert G. Bradford, Jarvis A. Wood, Wilfred W. Fry and William M. Armistead. F. Wayland Ayer, who, with his father, Nathaniel W. Ayer, was the original founder of the firm of N. W. Ayer & Son, and is now the active head of the business, presided as toastmaster.

One of the features of the jubilee was the presentation of a portrait painting of F. Wayland Ayer to the organization. The presentation was made by Albert G. Bradford, a member of the firm. Mr. Ayer was then presented with a testimonial of appreciation signed by all the guests present and employees of the firm.

Tribute was paid to the memory of Henry N. McKinney, founder of the firm, who died April 18, 1918. A bronze tablet on which was inscribed "For constructive genius and tireless energy made inestimable contribution to adequate conception of the power of advertising," was presented to the organization in memory of Mr. McKinney.

LIVING "PLACE CARDS."

Numbered among the guests at the banquet were representatives of each of the clients of N. W. Ayer & Son, and the four business employees of the firm. Page boys and page girls were ranged behind the chairs of the speakers as living "place cards." Ensconced behind the chair of Mr. Taft was a living picture of the G. O. P.

N. W. Ayer & Son started without employees. In seven years there were twenty, in 1903 they numbered 200, and today they number nearly 1,000.

The firm early adopted the motto "Keeping Everlastingly at It Brings Success," and with a beginning of $15,000 the first year, today it points to an annual business of many millions. Within ten years it had taken the lead among advertising agencies and in the amount of business placed and has kept it ever since. Since its founding the agency has paid to publishers more than $100,000,000.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN APRIL 5, 1919. BOSTON.

Both Sides at Lawrence Should Agree on Endicott as Arbitrator

For weeks the public has been treated to elaborately fabricated stories of violence in Lawrence under the general heading of "Bolshevism." By well-known methods somebody has filled the news columns of our newspapers with accounts of the Lawrence strike which carried strong implications that the mill owners were being made the victims of an organized conspiracy of dark and dangerous Russian Bolshevism to achieve the socialization of the Lawrence mills by violence.

The American has several times editorially warned the public not to believe all the stories that come out of Lawrence. It seemed to us from what investigations we could make, and they were as thorough as could be made, that the strike leaders were doing everything that they could to prevent violence, and that the police of Lawrence were by no means as careful not to aggravate a strained, high-strung situation into violence.

Everybody knows that it is now part of the program of the opponents of strikes to alienate public opinion from the strikers by inciting violence and then posing as its aggrieved and innocent victims. When violence by the strikers cannot be incited, it is often either faked in the news stories or it is deliberately planted upon the strikers, as, in the last Lawrence strike, dynamite was planted in the homes of innocent strikers, where the poor little children played at the risk of being blown into eternity, all for the terrible purpose of making the public believe that the strikers were plotting to blow up the mills.

At the beginning of the present strike in Lawrence, this newspaper was inclined to believe that the strikers put more faith in direct action, in the power of the strike, than in the intrinsic justice of their cause. Somehow we got the impression, though always distrustful of the mill owners, that they were not the aggressors in the present strike. But recent developments lead to a contrary conclusion. The strikers seem to have the most profound confidence in the intrinsic value of their cause, and have agreed to submit it to the arbitration of one of the finest gentlemen that America has ever produced; one of the greatest employers of labor in the world, a man whose spirit, if it pervaded the employer class in America, would make American conditions antiseptic to Bolshevism—Henry B. Endicott, who was executive manager of the Public Safety Committee of Massachusetts. Mr. Endicott has been a successful and satisfactory arbitrator between capital and labor more than any other man in New England in the last two years. Since he himself is an employer, it is not only a tribute to him, but an evidence of the confidence which the strikers entertain in the justness of their cause, that they accept him. No body of men, however unintelligent, would ever under intelligent leadership agree to submit their cause to a man like Mr. Endicott if they doubted its justness.

Now how do the mill owners show THEIR confidence in the justness of THEIR cause? Why, of course, in the good, old-fashioned way which makes Bolshevism. They have refused to arbitrate.

Commissioner Wood, of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, has proposed to investigate the situation in Lawrence. A majority of this moribund and useless board has refused to investigate. Of course! The Governor, we are informed, has withdrawn his letter requesting the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to investigate. Why? We do not want to misjudge Governor Coolidge in this early period of his administration, and we shall leave him to explain his reasons.

Now the Lawrence public authorities have shown their cloven hoof by refusing to grant Commissioner Wood the use of the City Hall in which to discuss the Lawrence situation. This is in America, where our forefathers took the trouble to guarantee in the constitutions of our States and Nation freedom of speech and the right to assemble for the redress of grievances. This is in the land of the free and the home of the brave!

The Lawrence police have persistently refused to allow the strikers to march or to assemble. The petty officials of the district, judicial and executive, are giving us a fine exhibition of the way to create Bolshevism. Bolshevism is the assumption of control of a country by its working classes by revolutionary methods. The working class in any country constitute the majority of its people. If the law is not obeyed by those elected to enforce it; if the political institutions of the country are distorted into instruments of oppression of the working classes; if the evolutionary methods prove to be utterly vain; if the public officials deny the law and become revolutionary in THEIR methods—how long do the short-sighted, possessing classes of the country suppose the workmen are going to restrain themselves from the adoption of revolutionary methods also?

Welcome Heroes of Yankee Division

Again we are uplifted to one of those high peaks of emotion raised by the World War.

Boston and New England hearts swelled with patriotism when the Yankee Division sailed away. The cost might not then be estimated. Repeatedly our hearts beat mightily at successive achievements of our New England troops in the very crisis of civilization. We balanced those achievements against the inevitable losses. Victory accomplished, we waited with stern patience for the return of our beloved heroes. Now we are in the midst of their train of arrivals. Superior to every other feeling is the sheer, overmastering joy, the exultant gladness with which we welcome back our boys—our husbands, brothers, sons, sweethearts and comrades. This is the time for which we have waited.

Now our New England soldiers are back at our door, the door flung wide open and garlanded with "Welcome" in every possible form. There is ever the sense of sorrow for those who have suffered sacrifices. But now, in the first flush of their home-coming, one pure, high note of rejoicing rises sweet and clear and insistent. The Yankee Division is returning home. Welcome and God bless them.

The Gold Star

Once-Overs

THE FIRST IMPRESSION

How do you approach a prospective employer?

Friends have told you that your first impression should be of activity; secondly, that you must appear enthusiastic—and, above all, you must be able to stamp the belief in your ability upon the one you seek as your employer.

To prevent these ideas of your personality, do you make such an extra effort to step quickly, think rapidly, and appear so bubbling over with exuberance that your muscles get jerky, you are too excited to give them brain guidance and your snap judgment indicates that you do not carefully enough consider matters which require solid thought?

What would you think of a man who bounced into your office, talked breathlessly and indistinctly, rattling off statements at once rash and impractical?

You would feel like firing him before you engaged him and then you would itch to give him a kick to get the effect of his presence out of your system, now wouldn't you?

How do you see yourself, now?

Do a little thinking before you present yourself and your abilities to any man for consideration.

Letters to the Editor

Condemns Tariff

Editor Boston American:

Anent the tariff article in your issue of Saturday, March 22: From its inception the government of this "land of the free" has maintained the policy of holding up people at all its ports of entry and taking some of their property away from them—that is, fining them for bringing wealth into the country.

One of the alleged reasons for this procedure is the procurement of money for defraying the cost of federal administration. The other reason given is, because the wealth has been produced outside of this country.

The platform of the party now in power affirms the first reason to be the valid one. The party that it displaced affirms the validity of both reasons.

Until it has been ascertained for a certainty that the ground or economic rental value of the country is not sufficient for all civil needs—not only local and State, but federal also—even a revenue tariff is indefensible. Indeed, even if ground rental value proves insufficient, the deficit should be made good, not by tariff, but by per capita taxation. For public administration, being, presumably, for the common defence and general welfare, should be supported wholly by per capita taxation.

The taxation of ground rental value is, in reality, per capita taxation, for it is payable upon a value that, of right, belongs equally to all; a value of which, were no public expenditures necessary, no just disposition could be made other than its per capita division. To deny this is to deny that all men have an equal right to the use of the earth.

As for the policy of fining people simply because some of the wealth in their possession was produced outside of this country, its mere statement is its sufficient condemnation. The principle of taxation for the protection of home industries is on a par with the "cardinal principle" of taxation according to ability. The injustice of the one is as self-evident as is the dishonesty of the other.

Arbitrary interference with freedom of trade is no less an act of tyranny than arbitrary interference with freedom of worship, of speech or of press. If the right to trade is not unalienable, then there is no such thing as an unalienable right.

The hodge-podge of present taxation (to call it a "system" would be a misnomer) is rotten from A to Z; is nothing but a string of devices to get money somehow or from somewhere or other; but if there's any part that's worse than any other part, it's the tariff, especially when its professed object is the keeping of American wages above the foreign "pauper" level.

COMING BACK on the train.
FROM CALIFORNIA.
WE TALKED it all over.
AND MY wife said,
"IF YOU think we can afford it,
GO AHEAD and do it."
AND WE reached home.
AND FOR two or three days,
WE WORRIED about it.
AND THEN all at once,
WE MADE up our minds
WE WERE going to do it.
AND WE got a list.
OF ALL of the cars.
THAT MATCHED our purse.
AND MY wife said,
"YOU GO on out.
"AND LOOK them over.
"AND WHEN you see what you like,
"COME BACK and get me."
AND I said I would.
AND I started out.
ALONG AUTOMOBILE Row.
AND LOOKED in the windows,
AT ALL the cars.
I HAD on my list.
AND PICKED out the one.
THAT I liked the best.
AND WENT inside.
AND TOLD a nice young man.
THAT I was in the throes.
OF BUYING an auto.
AND HADN'T any idea.
HOW TO go about it.
AND I had to be protected.
BECAUSE ALL I knew.
WAS WHAT color it was.
AND IF the cushions were soft.
AND IF it had a cigar lighter.
AND ABOUT how far.
IT WAS likely to be.
AWAY FROM a garage.
IF IT should break down.
AND I assured him.
I HADN'T any desire.
TO LOOK under the hood.
BECAUSE I assumed.
THERE WAS an engine there.
AND THAT it would run.
AND EVEN if it didn't.
I COULD look under the hood.
FOR THE rest of my life.
WITHOUT HELPING it any.
AND THE salesman assured me.
THAT I was right.
AND IT was a very great pleasure.
TO FIND a buyer.
WITH SO much sense.
AND ALTOGETHER.
HE WAS such a nice young man.
THAT I went right home.
AND GOT my wife.
AND TOOK her up.
AND INTRODUCED the salesman.
AND SHE liked him.
JUST AS well as I did.
AND WE bought the car.
AND IT'S a fine looking car.
AND WE'LL get it next week.
AND IF it'll run.
THAT'S ALL we expect it to do.
AND, ANYWAY.
WE DIDN'T kill ourselves.
CHASING AROUND.
LOOKING AT 'em all.

I THANK you.

LET AMERICA LEAD ALL AND NOT LAG!

Israel Zangwill Writes a Powerful and Exclusive Story for the Sunday Advertiser and American

"FULL-FLAVORED NATIONALITY IS THE PRICE OF WAR," warns ISRAEL ZANGWILL, in an arresting protest against American anti-immigration legislation, and other tendencies he sees developing in us to hem ourselves in "with a European rigidity."

No more splendid idealism of America has ever been pictured than Zangwill's "The Melting Pot"; Zangwill, the Britisher—the great voice of the Jews in present-day literature—sees in America "as she is," the fusing of all nations, "the culmination of history"—humanity's last hope! . . . But he fears that America, too, is narrowing into "Americanism." And NATIONALISM, he declares, is "NOT A CEREBRATION, BUT A CONTAGION, NOT AN ACTIVITY, BUT AN EPIDEMIC. It is deep as life, but as NARROW AS THE GRAVE."

The war is now history. And while much that has already been written about it has been based upon conjecture or imagination, we are now beginning to get authentic and historic data. Some of this data is startling, in its new light on epochal events; all of it is interesting. Tomorrow the Advertiser and American is privileged to give for the first time in America one of the MOST REMARKABLE STATE PAPERS OF THE WAR—the warning note, written on April 12, 1917, by COUNT CZERNIN, former Foreign Minister of Austria-Hungary, to his Emperor, and forwarded to the Kaiser. In this he urged immediate PEACE, to save the German nations from the DEBACLE he could see approaching. "Revolution is dawning along the whole European horizon," he declared. "If the monarchs of the Central Powers are incapable of making peace during the next few months, then the peoples will do it over their heads." But the Kaiser was blind.

CARSON IS OUT OF THE RUNNING in Irish affairs, declares T. P. O'CONNOR, in another of his able weekly British political reviews. "Carson and the Carsonites have been so repudiated and ment as to make it quite possible so isolated by the new Parliafor Lloyd George to ignore him in any scheme he may contemplate for the settlement of the Irish question." Everything, he adds, now points to the speeding up of this settlement.

Three times three and a tiger for OUR OWN GLORIOUS 26TH!—the boys are coming home! Some of them are here! Most opportune is Benwell's "HISTORY OF THE YANKEE DIVISION," another big chapter of which you'll find ready for scissors and paste-pot tomorrow. Up to tomorrow's installment the History has been more or less preliminary—the division has had a skirmish or two, but most of the time has been spent in getting ready for "the big show." Tomorrow we go with the boys into real action for the first time—and the show is on!

Another lovely full-color Christy drawing, "The Removal of Economic Barriers," this time; fifth in the series idealizing President Wilson's fourteen points.

Another big installment of "MOON OF ISRAEL," RIDER HAGGARD'S Egyptian masterpiece.

If any of the fun of the week is missing from those two laugh-filled pages, "As the funmakers see the news," and "Latest and best in the world of wit," you'll never know it! Fun, fun—nothing but fun!

Ditto, the Comics.

And there are two more of those famous songs—free.

Better place your order for tomorrow EARLY.
